

Gas shortage may affect 500,000 jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A looming natural gas shortage may start forcing as many as a half million Americans out of work in a matter of weeks unless Congress and the Ford administration can reach a compromise on national energy policy.

Congressional testimony has indicated some 500,000 workers may be out of jobs when the anticipated natural gas shortage hits this winter. There are predictions the layoffs could begin soon after Nov. 1.

No one in Congress has challenged the prediction, but neither Republicans nor Democrats in the Senate have indicated willingness to budge from their positions on energy pricing — the issue that has put the Democratic-controlled Congress at odds with President Ford for almost nine months.

Each side has its own proposed solution for the gas shortage forecast for 14 states this winter. The Federal Power Commission says either bill could help reduce the shortage to manageable proportions.

Republicans are seeking an end to all price controls on natural gas. They say ending controls would increase the price and therefore the supply of gas available to the 14 threatened states.

Democrats have pushed for emergency legislation that would permit gas-short states to buy gas directly from gas-producing states, mainly Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas, for about $1.25 per unit. That price is almost 150 per cent above the current controlled price.

But Republicans, with the President's blessing, have refused to consider the emergency legislation except as part of their effort to eliminate price controls on natural gas permanently.

Democrats are refusing to allow a vote, saying elimination of price controls would bring the oil-gas industry a bonanza and worsen inflation and unemployment. They note House leaders say there is no chance of passing a long-range gas bill in the House this year.

An attempted compromise was defeated Wednesday.

By a 55 to 45 vote the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., that would have let the well price of gas rise sharply over the next five years, with oil prices reduced during the same period. At the end of five years, the President could have, with congressional approval, modified the price controls or removed them altogether.

In general, Republicans say price controls have created gas shortages by denying the petroleum industry money needed to develop more energy. Democrats generally agree that prices should be allowed to rise somewhat — but not to the level that might be expected if controls were eliminated.

The proposal was rejected after the Senate, on a surprisingly close 54 to 45 vote, defeated an amendment by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., seeking to break the nation's largest oil and gas companies into numerous smaller firms.

Fighting breaks out again

Overpayments found in 625 subsidy cases

On the basis of a five-county "redetermination" check that is now nearly complete, 625 cases of persons receiving excessive monthly federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments have been detected, it was reported Wednesday by Michele Groves, assistant manager of the district Social Security Administration office, 825 Thompson Blvd.

About 60 per cent of these cases involve sums of less than $60 monthly, she estimated.

A total of 1,820 individual cases have been evaluated in Pettis, Saline, Cooper, Benton and Morgan Counties. Of these, 1,000 persons whose payments were checked live in Pettis County.

The SSI program, operated by the federal Social Security Administration, was created in January of 1974 to replace three federal aid programs formerly administered by state welfare agencies. These were the old age assistance, permanent and total disability and aid to the blind programs. A special Missouri supplemental payment program was created by the state Legislature to insure that no person's income would be lower under the SSI program than under the former program.

About half the SSI overpayment cases, Miss Groves said, resulted from increases in social security payments. Under federal regulations, the amounts of individual SSI payments are based upon each recipient's income. Because Social Security payments are considered income, increases in these benefits are supposed to be automatically coupled with a decrease in SSI payments.

This has not been done in many instances because of the failure of SSI participants to report increases in income from Social Security payments or other sources and also because of computer lag in correlating information regarding changes in individual income status.

Miss Groves declined to attribute the failure of individuals to report income changes completely to dishonesty, citing "confusion" and "ignorance" as the probable main factors involved. She said "the complexity of the program" contributed to this problem, noting that "there have been a lot of legislative changes involved."

Another factor leading to overpayments, she said, is the fact that changes in SSI payments may only be made on a quarterly basis, thus permitting at least several months of overpayment even when changes in income are promptly reported. Also, recent judicial decisions have upheld the right of persons whose SSI incomes have been lowered to appeal the decision within 30 days. Until the dispute is resolved, the payments cannot be affected.

On the national level, top officials of the Social Security Administration said overpayments in the first 18 months of the SSI program have reached $460.8 million. That figure, it was reported, may eventually reach between $700 million and $800 million.

The current five-county survey will be repeated periodically in an attempt to minimize local and area SSI overpayments, Miss Groves said.

Sixty to 80 injured in Portugal clashes

OPORTO, Portugal (AP) — Demonstrators supporting mutinous far-left soldiers in Oporto clashed with opponents overnight and hospital authorities said between 60 and 80 persons were injured, four with bullet wounds.

Most of the victims, including six soldiers, were injured during rock-throwing battles, the hospital said.

It was impossible to fix the origin of the shots in the general confusion.

The civilian supporters of the artillery regiment rebelling against the moderate-left central government set up defensive barricades around the garrison today.

In Lisbon, meanwhile, a small leftist party, the Reorganization Movement of the Proletarian Party (MRPP), reported that one of its officials, Jose Alexandrino Sousa Antonio, drowned today as a result of an attack by members of another small leftist group which it identified as the Democratic Popular Union (UDP).

The MRPP said a group of its men was surprised while putting up wall posters and they were thrown in the Tagus River by the UDP group. Sousa Antonio was unable to swim and drowned.

At the height of the fighting in Oporto, rebel troops fired blanks at the crowd of several thousand and drove a tank into their midst in an attempt to break up the protest.

The demonstration, grouping about 5,000 members of the centrist Popular Democratic party (PPD), began in the heart of Portugal's second largest city 175 miles north of Lisbon. The demonstrators shouted their support for Portugal's current, moderate government.

Large sections of the crowd then crossed a bridge over the Douro River and headed for the rebel artillery regiments barracks, where they were confronted by a few hundred leftists who are camping outside the headquarters in support of the mutineers.

There were rock-throwing battles and charges behind makeshift wooden shields by both sides before the firing broke out and the military regiment sent in its tank.

The mutineers are demanding the reinstatement of leftist activists purged from military units.

Fear of civil war has increased in Portugal as more and more army units have taken sides before moderate leftists who control the government and the radical left which preaches revolution.

Sinai pact amendment defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving closer to giving President Ford the authority to send American technicians to monitor the Sinai accord, the Senate today refused to bar the use of U.S. armed forces to rescue the technicians in an emergency.

An amendment by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., banning military personnel and equipment was defeated 75 to 15.

The amendment was offered as a substitute for a House-approved amendment specifying that congressional approval of up to 200 Americans at Sinai desert stations would not give the president additional authority to introduce American armed forces into hostilities.

The House amendment by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., was adopted Wednesday night before the House passed the technician resolution 341 to 69.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., asked the Senate to write the same language into the Senate resolution to make it conform to the House resolution. This would avoid the need for a conference to adjust differences while Congress is in a week-long recess next week, he said.

A final Senate vote on the technician proposal is set for Friday.

The deployment of American technicians in the Sinai was part of the United States commitment in the peace accord between Israel and Egypt.

President Ford had sought approval of the stationing of the technicians in the buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian forces by last Friday, but the Senate has yet to act on the proposal.

Casualties heavy in Beirut fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Private armies of Christians and Moslems battled in the streets of Beirut today as Premier Rashid Karami again sought Syrian mediation from President Hafez Assad in Damascus.

Unofficial estimates of casualties in the past 24 hours ranged up to 60 dead and more than 200 wounded.

A heavy rainfall, the first of the season, stilled the gunfire for 40 minutes shortly after dawn. But street fighting resumed as the sun rose.

"Armed men are everywhere," Beirut Radio announced. "All roads are closed. There is no change in the situation."

Machinegun battles raged in several residential areas. Sniper fire and bomb blasts terrorized suburbs outside the main combat zones.

Fires started in Wednesday's battles burned out of control until the arrival of 12 fire engines from Syria to help hard-pressed Lebanese crews.

Government sources said Karami left for Damascus before dawn in a last-ditch attempt to "Arabize" the Lebanese conflict with mediation from other governments.

Syria had sent Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam to mediate in the last round of sectarian fighting here, resulting in a temporary cease-fire that ended after the Moslem feast of Eid el Fitr.

Late Wednesday night, Karami expressed support for a Kuwaiti proposal to convene an urgent conference of Arab foreign ministers to discuss the Lebanese situation.

In the bloodiest incident of Wednesday's day-long action, a mortar shell ripped into a crowd of worried citizens who had gathered at a bakery to stock up on bread, killing 14 and injuring more than 25.

Rocket-propelled grenades and mortar shells set several fires in the Moslem suburb of Chiyah, and the Christian stronghold of Ashrafieh also was shelled heavily.

Black smoke drifted over the downtown area from a huge blaze in the port area and fires broke out at a nearby marketplace containing dozens of shops.

Renewed fighting also broke out between Moslems in the northern port of Tripoli and Christians from the neighboring town of Zagharta. Reports listed one dead and 24 wounded.

Lebanon's civil strife stems from efforts by Moslems, their numbers swelled by Palestinian guerrillas whom they support, to grab more political power from the conservative Christian establishment and a leftist struggle for a better economic deal for the country's mostly Moslem lower class.

Both sides have well-armed militias numbering in the thousands. The 18,000-man Lebanese army has loaned some units to police and security forces but generally has stayed out of the fighting.

The Beirut airport stayed open Wednesday, but many smaller airlines canceled flights into Lebanon. Offices, shops and banks remained closed. Three hospitals appealed for blood as the number of casualties rose.

Dozens of cease-fires have been broken since the fighting began in April. Officials estimate about 6,000 persons have been killed in the violence.

Girls get into soccer action

By OWEN HARDY
Democrat-Capitol Staff Writer

The soccer game raged furiously. From the sidelines the irate coach shouted orders to his pint-sized players.

"Watch that guy there, Jimmy, watch that guy!" he yelled to a little blonde-headed boy, who was struggling with a soccer ball almost half his size. Jimmy suddenly turned to the sidelines, pointed to the "guy," and said, "But it's a girl."

"Well watch it anyway," the coach replied, a bit flustered.

The "guy" Jimmy was pointing at was Lorrie Birdsong, 11, 1900 West Fifth, one of eight girls who are playing on Sedalia's Khoury Soccer League for the first time in its 13-year history.

The others are June Downing, 6, 2808 Meadow Wood Drive; Larra Darrah, 11, 1020 South Ohio; Cindy Ronspiez, 9, 1517 East Seventh; Terri Durian, 11, 1403 South Missouri; Shelly Wadley, 11, 2105 West Fifth; Shawn Woolery, 11, 1608 East 12th; and Michelle White, 8, Route 2. The girls play on seven different teams.

Dale Stephens, player agent for the league, says there was little if any opposition in the area to girls invading the previously all-male domain. "A few of the (Khoury League) board members were a little surprised at first," Stephens

Coming from behind

Terri Durian, 11, 1403 South Missouri, guards her opponent as he prepares to kick the soccer ball farther down field. Terri is one of eight girls playing on Sedalia's Khoury Soccer League this year, a first in the League's 13-year history.

says, "but no one was really against it."

The girls are definitely for it. They all got hooked on the sport by their soccer-playing brothers. And they are unanimous in saying they see nothing wrong with girls getting in on the action.

"It's fun," says Cindy. "I don't think it's rough. I'll probably play next year." Michelle agrees. "It's not as rough as I expected it to be," she says.

But some of the other girls aren't so sure. Lorrie, who plays in the 10 and 11-year-olds'

Bantam League, says she might not play next season because she'll be 12 and will have to move up to the Midget League where, she says, "I think they play rougher."

And what about the boys out there? How are they taking it? "They don't like it," Cindy says. "They just don't like girls. But I like playing against boys." Shelly says they have an edge on her because they've been playing longer but, she says, "They don't seem to mind girls playing that much."

Shawn, who has already scored one goal on a penalty kick this season, says, "I don't get pushed around." And Michelle says, "Sometimes the boys tease me, but I just ignore them." But, she says, "I still like to play against boys."

To be sure, the boys are not always perfect gentlemen with their new female competition. Asked what they thought of their new team members, two boys replied, "Aw, not too much... I think it's dumb. They're always back there bothering us."

But on a more serious note, 10-year-old Tyree Anderson said, on his way out to the practice field, "We think it's okay. The girls are pretty good."

Chuck Zimmerman, 320 North Quincy, a team manager, says the smallest women's libber of the league, June, age 6, is "doing real well. The other boys accept her real good. They're all for her," he says.

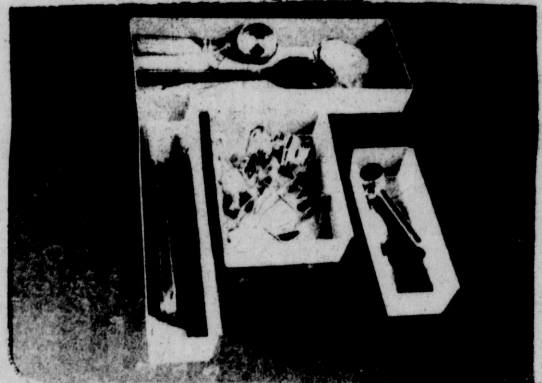

But it still may be too early to tell how the new coeducational Khoury Soccer League will work out. Even the girls themselves don't seem quite sure how they like it. When asked if she liked playing against boys, June immediately answered "Yep," and then, after a moment, put in a qualifying "Nope."

DEATH NOTICES

Andrew A. Bordoli

Andrew A. Bordoli, 72, 1814 West Fifth, died at the Missouri Pacific Hospital in St. Louis Wednesday afternoon.

He was born in Terry, S. D., Feb. 12, 1903, son of the late James and Madeline Formento Bordoli. He married Dena Beavers, Nov. 28, 1934, and she preceded him in death March 10, 1959. On Sept. 4, 1962, he married Lucille Hill Shy, who survives, of the home.

He worked in the signal department at the Missouri Pacific Shops until his retirement. He had lived in Sedalia since 1949, moving here from Atchinson, Kan.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Also surviving are two step-sons, James Shy, Independence; Larry Shy, Medina, Ohio; one step-daughter, Mrs. Sibyl Montague, Pittsburgh, Pa.; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Conrad and Mrs. Martin Schmidt, both of Moberly; Mrs. Mary Somers, St. Louis; and nine step-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the Heckart-Gillespie Colonial Chapel with the Rev. George R. Kern, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating.

Pallbearers will be Clark Baker, Ira Barnes, C. F. Gault, Frank Hanigan, Albert Lindsey and Robert Werner.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

James Gamber

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — Funeral services for James Gamber, 85, a former Sedalian who died here Monday, will be held at 2:30 p.m. Friday at the Grove Mortuary here.

Mr. Gamber moved to California in the late 1920's and is survived by his wife, Ethel; a daughter, Lorraine; and six grandchildren.

Burial will be in a San Bernardino cemetery.

House extensively damaged by vandals

The Pettis County sheriff's department is investigating the extensive vandalism done Wednesday to the Kenneth Paxton home in the Maplewood subdivision, east of Sedalia.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax reported that the home was unlocked between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Wednesday and that red paint had been sprayed throughout the house.

According to reports, one side of a double kitchen sink was painted red, obscenities were painted on the living room rug, the refrigerator was damaged and holes were knocked in a wall, apparently with a broom handle.

No damage estimate was made available.

Pallbearers will be Theodore Jones, Leroy Salmons, Harvey Pace, Jose Buso, Lloyd Pace and Ervin Thompson.

Burial will be in the Crown Hill Cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home.

Those eligible for tax refunds still sought

The Missouri Department of Revenue is trying to locate several area citizens who still have refunds from their Missouri income tax due them because of overpayment.

James R. Spradling, department director, reported that more than 8,000 taxpayers entitled to refunds cannot be found and all efforts by the department to locate these taxpayers and remit their overpayments have been unsuccessful. The average refund is about $30, he said.

Taxpayers who are located and make claims for refunds must submit the claim in writing, enclosing name, current address and social security number. Claims should be addressed to Tax Refund, P. O. Box 500, Jefferson City, Mo., 65101.

The following are Sedalia and area taxpayers who are entitled to refunds, with their last-known addresses listed as follows:

State board recommends increases for colleges

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Across-the-board increases of operating budgets for all state campuses in fiscal year 1976-77 has been recommended by the Coordinating Board for Higher Education.

The recommendations, made Wednesday, will go to Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who will pass on his recommendations to the legislature, which has the final word.

The board recommended a total operating budget for all campuses in the University of Missouri system of $127 million, an increase of 6.8 per cent.

The recommendations for other state institutions, and percentage of increase from the previous budget:

Central Missouri State, $14,438,290, 10.7 per cent.; Northeast Missouri State,

Grant Co. store in Sedalia to close before end of year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The W.T. Grant Co. store in the State Fair Shopping Center here will be closed before the end of the year, the company announced Thursday afternoon.

The company said it will continue to operate only 11 stores west of the Mississippi River — two in Missouri and nine in Louisiana.

The Sedalia store was among three outlets to close in the state. The others are at Main Street and Antioch Shopping Center in Kansas City.

The New York-based retailer, cutting back under federal bankruptcy laws, said the comeback "reorganizes the company's objective to concentrate its store locations where it is best known and receives the strongest consumer support."

The company was founded in Massachusetts in 1906 and has always been most heavily concentrated in the Northeast. It now has 1,074 stores and the closings will reduce that to 873.

Grant said that as part of its first stage in store realignment, it would close 201 stores — 107 on or before Nov. 30 and 94 by late December.

Grant said it is closing all stores in the following states: Arizona, with 12 stores; California, 65; Idaho, 11; Iowa, five; Minnesota, four; Nebraska, two; Montana, two; Nevada, two.

Also, New Mexico, with one store; Oregon, one; Texas, 11 and Washington, four.

Drug case

Judge continues doctor's hearing

MARSHALL — Howard County Magistrate Judge Ralph Jaynes Wednesday afternoon continued the preliminary hearing for Dr. Nelson Suarez, Slater, until 2:30 p.m. Nov. 5 in Saline County Magistrate Court here. Judge Jaynes also is scheduled to rule on a motion to dismiss the case at that time.

Dr. Suarez, 60, a Slater physician and surgeon for 24 years, is charged with illegally dispensing a controlled substance on Sept. 15 in his office to Judy Marie Deaton, 18, and Cindy Lue Sumpter, 16, both of Slater.

Amended charges, filed Wednesday by Saline County Prosecuting Attorney Rick Wilson, said the transfer of the controlled substance by Dr. Suarez "was not in the usual course of business or practice, or in the performance of any official duty."

Dr. Suarez's attorneys, Larry McClure and Michael Reid, both of Marshall, contend the alleged incident places a question on the proper practice of medicine. They also say the case should be considered by the state board of healing arts and then transferred to Wilson if there is substantial evidence the doctor committed a crime.

The criminal complaint filed against Dr. Suarez, charges him with dispensing three capsules of clorimene, a diet pill restricted under the Missouri Revised Statutes, to both girls on Sept. 15. According to Saline County Sheriff Henry Hoff, this meeting was arranged.

In late July the girls reportedly went to Dr. Suarez's office to pick up a prescription for Miss Deaton's parents. At this time, Dr. Suarez allegedly offered the girls pills which he told them would make them "feel good."

Evidence in the case also includes a tape recording made by the use of a microphone concealed on one of the girls during the September visit to Dr. Suarez's office, according to officials.

Dr. Suarez's attorneys Wednesday requested 30 days to file both a memorandum on the alleged incident and a motion to suppress evidence from the scheduled preliminary hearing.

Dr. Suarez was arrested Sept. 19; arraigned before Saline County Magistrate Judge Allen Parish and released on $5,000 bond. Less than a week after his arrest, petitions in support of the doctor reportedly sprung up in several Slater stores.

Dr. Suarez is one of two physicians in the 2,600-person Slater community.

Truck alarm system frightens thieves

Thieves got away with a paging unit and recorder but left a citizens band radio on the ground when an alarm went off as they burglarized a truck parked on the lot of Sambo's Restaurant, 2001 South Limit, Wednesday night.

The truck driver was in the restaurant shortly after midnight Wednesday when someone came in and told him the horn was sounding on his truck. An alarm system was hooked up to the truck's horn. The paging unit, belonging to Tel-Missouri Communications, St. Louis, was missing. However, the CB radio was found on the ground next to the truck. No value was set on the loss.

In other police news, five car batteries valued at a total of $100 were taken from cars parked at Chancellor Motors, 16th and Ohio, sometime Monday night.

About $80 worth of tools were stolen from a garage at the home of Delmar Bergfelder, 520 East Fifth, about 12:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Police also reported that George Wheatley, 1710 South Quincy, reported the theft of $35 in quarters from his home Monday.

Wheatley told police that he took his wife to Columbia Monday morning and when he returned Monday evening the money was missing. The house was locked, but police could find no signs of forced entry.

Home improvement program attracts 12 applications

The City of Sedalia has received 12 applications for home improvement interest subsidy loans and new sewer connections under the Community Development Block Grant Program, according to Gary Dey, program administrator.

Eligibility for the loans and sewer connections are set forth under income and number of dependents guidelines established by the city, under recommendations by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The program is designed to aid low income people wanting to remodel or make additions to their homes, Dey said. Loans will be made on the improvements, through local lending institutions with the applicant paying the principal and HUD paying the interest.

The maximum interest amount is $5,000 for five years.

While Dey noted applications "could be taken all year," he urged interested persons to contact him at his office, Room 203 of the Municipal Building between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, as soon as possible.

Damage suit is filed by local school district

A cross-claim suit for $80,000 was filed Oct. 3 in Jackson County Circuit Court against the Don "L" Bron Construction Co., Kansas City, by the Sedalia school district, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Allan Henningsen announced Thursday.

The $80,000, Henningsen said, reflects the estimated expenses to the district caused by alleged breaches of contract and construction problems relating to the building of the Sedalia Junior High School building.

Bron was the general contractor for the project. The contract between Bron and the school board was signed in December, 1970, and the building has still not received a permanent certification of occupancy from Building Inspector Woodrow Garrison. It has been open for classes since the start of the 1972-73 school year, operating under temporary occupancy permits that have been periodically renewed.

Henningsen said Thursday the $80,000 in damages sought from Bron is a realistic figure and measures the losses the board feels were incurred by the school district regarding the construction project.

In mid-September, Bron filed a cross-claim suit for $3,575.60 against the district. Bron maintained in the suit that "all work and materials provided for under (the contract with the school district) have been performed and completed in a good and workmanlike manner."

Regarding this suit, Henningsen said "we also want to keep that $3,575.60. We don't want to lose that by having to pay it out."

Sack lunch

By ERMA BOMBECK

My husband tossed his brown paper bag on the counter the other night as he dragged in from work.

"Another day, another lunch!" I chirped.

"Why do I always have the feeling I'm having a prescription filled?" he asked.

"What kind of a crack is that? Don't you like the lunches I send?"

"It's not what I would call a religious experience."

"What is wrong with them?"

"We don't seem to be able to communicate," he said flatly.

"For example, when you send a plastic bag full of bacon-bit cookies, and I bring the cookies home, that means I do not want to eat the cookies. I have no intention of eating the cookies."

The cookies will make me sick. I cannot work when I am sick."

"I don't know what cookies you are talking about."

"The ones you've been sending every day since Christmas."

"The ones shaped like Christmas bells and the ding dong is a bacon bit?"

"Those are the ones."

"You said you like them."

"I said they were interesting."

"Same thing."

"It is not the same thing. I like Mary Tyler Moore. Henry Kissinger is interesting."

"It's not easy packing lunches," I sulked.

"Why don't you hold the fruit for a few days until it gets well?"

"Why?"

"One more day and the apple will go into the Guinness Book of Records for endurance."

"That's not funny," I said.

"I didn't mean it to be. How do you think I feel when a guy at the next desk looks over and say, 'Hey, what's in that sandwich?' and I have to read the label on it."

"What was wrong with the sandwich?"

"You've heard of instant replay?"

"I am always open to suggestions," I said evenly.

"Okay, why don't you get one of those wide-mouth thermoses for hot things?"

I looked at him. "They don't make them in your size."

Communication is overrated.

Ann Landers

Grandma prefers plain basket dinner

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 47-year-old divorced woman with a heartbreaking problem I can't handle. It's my wonderful married daughter who lives in the suburbs with her three children in a mortgaged, refinanced home. She is at bankruptcy's door.

I know her kids eat jelly sandwiches and beans all week so they can take me to a swell place for dinner every Friday evening. I don't want to hurt her feelings but I know the score from A to Z and it's killing me.

I don't need to go to a fancy-smantzy place to eat. In fact, I die when I see her pull out a $50 bill to pay the check. Fifty dollars could buy food for the family for a whole week.

Ann, I lived through the Depression and I'd rather carry a hot dog in my purse and give the kids $5 for fruit or ice cream than let this dear girl treat me to any more expensive hotel dinners. What can I do about it? — Just Sick.

Dear Gram: You can lay it on that well-known line and tell your daughter that unless she lets you bring a basket supper to her home from now on, you'll refuse to come. Make it plain that you don't want, nor do you enjoy restaurant food, and from now on it's going to be your way or not at all.

Dear Ann: I'd like to add

Health care is topic at meeting

A 44-member task force composed of interested citizens and health care professionals from Health Service Area II will meet at 1 p.m. Friday at the Ramada Inn here to discuss the development of a health systems agency which will serve a 60 county area of north and central Missouri.

This will be the second meeting of the task force, whose role is to develop all materials required to make application for establishment of an agency for Area II, which includes Pettis and surrounding counties. It is also anticipated that the group will select temporary officers. The state of Missouri is divided into five health service areas for this purpose.

The health system agency will carry out health planning activities as mandated under the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act. Specifically, the agency's job will be to assess situations and programs and make decisions about their programs based on need, John Line, chief of regional health plan implementation in the Office of Comprehensive Health Planning, Jefferson City, said.

Persons from regional planning commissions were requested to form the task force. Persons on the task force from this area are Don Feeback, Sedalia; Howard Baldwin, Warrensburg; Vivian Ponce, Alma; Dr. Ferrell Musgraves, Marshall; Raphael Hall, Sweet Springs; and Mrs. E. E. Hailey, Arrow Rock.

something to your recent column on love and sex. No excuses, just facts. To start with, I was pretty naive when I got married. I had two children, a lousy marriage which I stayed with (thinking it would be better for the children to be raised with two parents) and I had to work a full-time job.

My husband was a rotten father, but I waited till they grew up before I fell in love. It was not mutual. Mr. X (to his everlasting credit) played it straight. He never lied and said he loved me. He said he denied me for the sex his wife denied him. He always told me his wife was a fine woman (but a cold fish) and he would never leave her. So, we decided to have an affair and break it off when the excitement was over.

After eight months my heart throb said he'd had enough. I thought we parted friends. But when I phoned him one day to say hi, his cold reception left me stunned. He also admitted rather casually that he had told his wife everything! That nearly killed me. I would have died before telling anyone about us.

Why can't former lovers remain friends? Does anyone know the answer? — Still Hurting.

Dear Still: Some lovers can but yours was a heel. He proved it by telling his wife. Good riddance, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: I was horrified at your advice to the woman whose cousin couldn't throw away newspapers or magazines. Her place was piled ceiling-high with periodicals that went back years.

Unfortunately, the poor dear was an inveterate cigarette smoker. You were afraid she'd set the apartment on fire, and advised: "Talk to the apartment manager. Tell him she's a fire hazard and to shape up or else."

Don't you realize the woman is a severe neurotic? The inability to throw anything away is part of her illness. Your advice should have been: "She MUST stop smoking." — Shame On You.

Dear Shame: Of course she's a compulsive neurotic — and her smoking is another one of her symptoms. Those combined compulsions could spell death for every person in that building. That's why I suggested the manager be informed. I hope the reader took my advice.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Business news

Local Farm Bureau agent Ed Kuligowski and secretary Vicki Marriot attended a recent Farm Bureau meeting in Warrensburg where they heard state organization leaders outline plans for the coming year's programs.

C. R. Johnston, president of the 54,000-member state Farm Bureau noted that the group is now the largest general farm organization in the world.

The meeting was held to kick-off the group's fall membership campaign.

Student reports

A Sedalia coed majoring in art education at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg, is holding her senior art show now through Saturday.

Deborah Noller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brines, 225 South Grand, included pencil and ink drawings, oil paintings, macramé and sculpture works in the show.

Debbie Leimkuehler, a member of the Phi Beta Lambda chapter at State Fair Community College, was elected state vice-president at a state Phi Beta Lambda meeting Oct. 3 and 4 in Jefferson City.

Ten other members of the local chapter attended the meeting at which Dr. Arthur Mallory, state commissioner of education, spoke. Nine junior colleges and state universities were represented.

New officers for the Smith-Cotton High School chapter of Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) were elected at a recent meeting of the group at the school library.

They are: Cathy Buck, president; Jerry Smith, vice president; Leslie Ream, secretary; Sandy Pirtle, treasurer; and Diana Frisbie, reporter.

Teacher-student ratio narrows

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Although attendance at Missouri public schools increased only 13 per cent over the 10-year period ending last year, the number of teachers in the schools jumped by more than 50 per cent, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported Tuesday.

Public school employees numbered 59,700 in Missouri in 1964 while there were 89,788 in the state last year.

"In the last three years of the 10-year period, attendance has declined, but public school employment has continued to increase," the survey said. It based its statement on figures supplied by the U. S. Census Bureau.

The rapid growth in the number of public school employees was only one example the survey gave in its report on how expanding state and local governments are allegedly threatening Missourians with a tax increase.

Using additional statistics from the Census Bureau, the Missouri Division of Accounting, Division of Employment Security and other sources, the survey reported:

— The number of state and local government employees has increased from 137,400 in October of 1964 to 204,594 in the same month last year — a 48.9 per cent increase, while the state's population increased only 8.3 per cent.

— The state payroll rose from $64.4 million to $542.2 million — an increase of nearly 230 per cent.

— Local government employees' payrolls swelled 167 per cent to $1.4 billion.

While the expanding numbers of public school teachers accounted for the greatest increase in employees, in state government the greatest increase in the number of employees and payroll were in higher education and welfare, the survey reported.

In higher education, employment grew from 7,300 in 1964 to 14,953 last year, nearly an increase of 100 per cent. Payroll went from $46.5 million to $176.1 million, an increase of 279 per cent.

In state welfare operations, employment grew from 2,400 to 5,667, while payroll for those workers swelled 333 per cent to $41.6 million.

"The upward trends become a particular concern at this time, however, when the state's fiscal situation appears stringent and the demands of local governments for additional revenues are a recurring theme in the news," the survey said. "It is clear that if the upward trends of the past 10 years continue, Missouri taxpayers will be called upon at both the state and local levels to pay higher taxes — further handicapping them in coping with rising inflation."

The survey urged public officials and legislative bodies to take a closer look at their programs and expenditures for them.

"It is, of course, recognized that public employees should be adequately paid. But searching questions can be asked as to levels of employment and whether full value is being received from the expenditure of payroll dollars," the survey said.

The survey describes itself as a governmental research organization with offices in Jefferson City. It has 1,500 members representing businesses and professional people.

Farm Bureau leader enters eighth term

The Pettis County Farm Bureau re-elected Jerry Conaway, Route 1, Hughesville, as the organization's president at its annual dinner Wednesday night at the Farm Bureau Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds here. He enters his eighth year as the organization's leader.

Patti Lalla, Route 2, was crowned queen for the second time in as many years.

Main speaker for the event was Thurmon Lowry, agribusiness instructor at State Fair Community College. Lowry explained the college's vocational-agriculture program. He said his department is staffed by five full-time instructors and one part-time instructor. A full-time high school vocational-agriculture instructor is also employed by the college.

One of the most outstanding aspects of the SFCC vocational-agriculture program, according to Lowry, is its intern program. He said the program allows students to gain practical experience by working in the agri-business field. Last year 60 vocational-agricultural students were employed in six states.

Lowry said the school is trying to establish a curriculum of agri-business courses for night students. It is hoped this program will be implemented by January, Lowry said.

He predicted SFCC eventually "is going to have one of the best two-year agri-business programs in the nation."

Policeman in Joplin is wounded

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — A police detective was shot and critically wounded early today while assisting Patrolwoman Vicki Myers in the arrest of a robbery suspect.

The suspect also was wounded. He was identified by Police Chief Bernard Kakuske as a runaway from the Missouri State Training School for Boys at Boonville. He had been missing since last July.

The youth underwent surgery this morning. His condition was not immediately known.

Kakuske said the officers told him the suspect pulled a gun and started shooting as they sought to arrest him.

Detective Manford Lee Grenninger, 27, was struck twice in the throat and once in the leg.

Patrolwoman Myers returned the gunfire, Kakuske said, hitting the youth in the side.

The chief said the gun used by the youth was a .38 caliber pistol reported stolen Sept. 30 from a hardware store in Springfield.

Parkinson's Law at work in state

Parkinson's Law is alive and well in Missouri.

The law, you will recall, goes this way: in any organization the number of subordinates multiplies at a predeterminable annual rate regardless of the amount of work actually turned out.

That invaluable organization, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey, recently took a hard look at trends in local and state government. Its findings substantiate the validity of Parkinson's Law.

For example, take education. Between 1964 and 1974 employment in the public schools increased more than 50 per cent, payrolls 164 per cent. Yet the actual growth in enrollment during this period was only 13 per cent.

On the state level, the number of employes in higher education doubled, with the payroll increasing a whopping 279 per cent.

In state and local government, employes grew at almost six times the rate of the population. Payrolls in these categories almost tripled.

And despite all the talk about how the federal bureaucracy is out of control, in the 1964-74 decade in Missouri the number of state and local government employes increased THREE times faster than those in federal service.

As for the matter of salaries for public employes, the cry has always been that they should at least equal those paid in the private sector, as indeed they should. But the survey found that 1974 average salaries for state and local government employes were higher than those in private business and industry.

Pointing out that since salaries account for more than 70 per cent of government costs, the survey warns that unless curbs are put on personnel expenditures, tax increases will soon be necessary on the state and local levels.

Self-perpetuating bureaucracies have long been a characteristic of all governments. But at today's prices, the time may rapidly be approaching when taxpayers will shout, "enough!"

Drawing the line at New York City

WASHINGTON — "Mr. President, are you ready for this morning's briefing?"

"Yes, Henry, go ahead."

"Congress has just passed a bill making it possible for us to give arms to Turkey."

"Good. How much do you think we should give them?"

"Maybe $500 million to start with. Those bases mean a lot to us."

"It's a steal."

"We've just made a deal with Spain for air and naval bases over the next five years."

"That's nice. What will it cost us?"

"I would say between six and seven hundred and fifty million dollars over the next five years. They wanted $2 billion in military aid, but we put our foot down."

"I'm glad you did. We can't throw money around."

"We hope to get the $2 billion for Israel and the $750 million for Egypt before the end of the congressional session."

"I should think so."

"We're getting a little resistance on the defense budget from Congress. We asked for $120 billion, but the House only wants to give us $111 billion."

"Dammit, don't they realize such reductions are a sure way to make us No. 2 in a world where only No. 1 counts?"

"I warned them about that, sir, but you know how they are on The Hill. They never think about being No. 1."

"I'm going to have to go out to some more Republican fund-raising dinners and warn the American people that Congress is playing fast and loose with 'national security.'"

"I think you should, sir. The people want to see you, and they want to hear what you're up against."

"What else do you have to tell me?"

"The Treasury revised the U. S. deficit figures from $60 billion to $70 billion and possibly $90 billion at the rate we're borrowing money."

"Well, it can't be helped. We need a strong economy, and we can't do it with a balanced budget."

"There's one more thing. Mayor Beame is in the outer office to see you about a loan for New York City."

"That's ridiculous! How does he expect the United States to loan him any money?"

"He's offering you U. S. air and naval bases. He claims his are better than the ones we have in Turkey and Spain. He says he'll give you the Brooklyn Navy Yard, La Guardia Field and State Island on a long-term lease."

"That's outrageous! We're not going to finance Beame just because he has military bases we need."

"He also said he is willing to pull his troops back from the George Washington Bridge and out of the Lincoln Tunnel in exchange for $2 billion in aid."

"Beame thinks he can get out of his fiscal problems by scaring us with war with New Jersey. But it isn't going to work. If he gets away with it, we'll be blackmailed by every mayor in America."

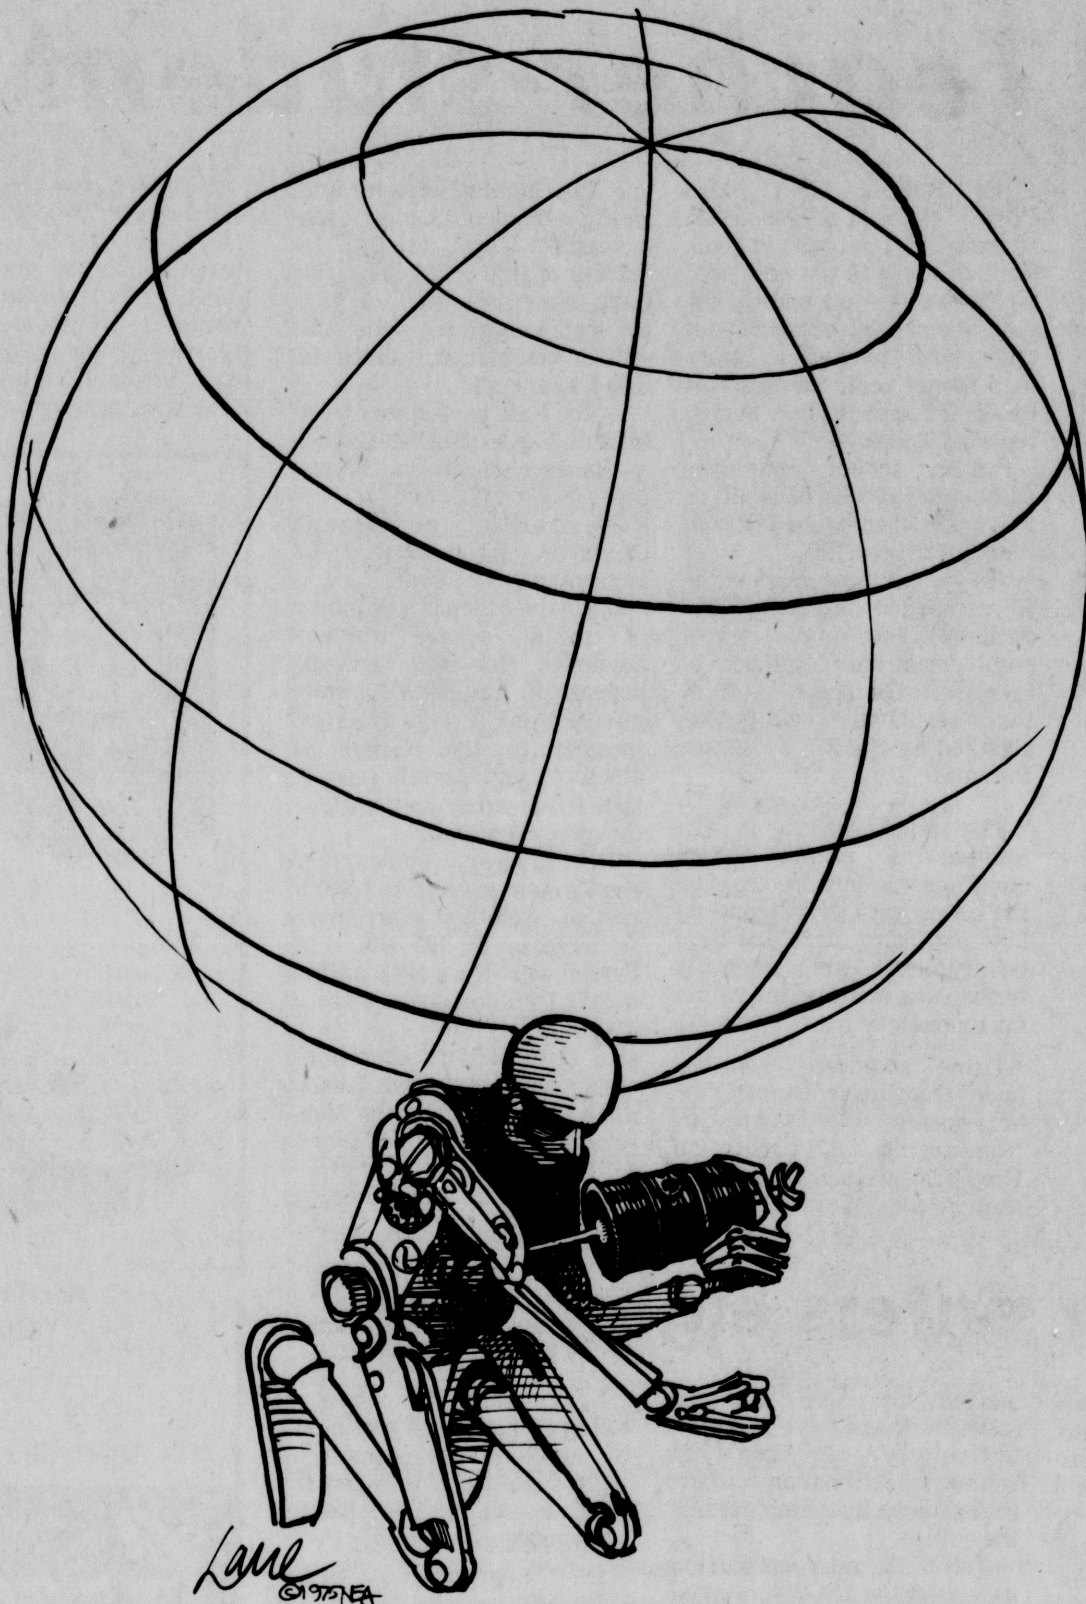

"Exactly my feelings, sir. We can't play sugar daddy for every bankrupt city in the country."

"Right, Henry, we've got to draw the line somewhere. Is that it?"

"South Korea wants $750 million to beef up their defenses."

"Well, give it to them, for heaven's sakes. If we don't help our friends, who will?"

56 Million Barrel a Day Habit

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Still hidden in secret grand jury transcripts and locked prosecutors' files is the dramatic story of how the Watergate case was broken.

We have spent weeks interviewing FBI sources, government prosecutors and defense attorneys to get the details that never came out at the public hearings.

The real heroes of Watergate, we have concluded, were the FBI agents who wouldn't let the White House obstruct their investigation and the original Watergate prosecutors who painstakingly fitted the jigsaw pieces into a criminal conspiracy.

The three unsung prosecutors — Earl Silbert, Seymour Glazer and Donald Campbell — handed the case on a silver platter to the special prosecutor and his staff of 90.

They had no way of knowing in June, 1972, that President Nixon personally had issued the order to cover up the trail of break-ins, bag jobs, forgeries, frame-ups, rough-ups and buggings, which we now know as Watergate.

The FBI agents, therefore, encountered incredible obstacles from the moment they started down the Watergate trail. The key witnesses either lied outright or withheld vital information.

As an example, the G-men for weeks couldn't identify the two chief culprits, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, who were known to them only as George Leonard and Ed Warren.

The notorious pair were well known, of course, inside the White House, which paid them blackmail to lay low. The CIA, which provided the phony identities, also knew them.

Merry-go-round

Watergate 'heroes' were investigators

Late in the morning of the Watergate arrests, Liddy sought out then-Attorney General Richard Kleindienst on the Burning Tree golf course. Thus, the attorney general actually met one of the ringleaders whom the FBI was seeking.

On July 6, the CIA finally delivered a memo to the acting FBI director, Pat Gray, revealing that Liddy and Hunt had been furnished false identities. Yet Gray locked the memo in his safe, without breathing a word of it to his own agents.

Not until November, 1972, did the prosecutors learn the true identities of George Leonard and Ed Warren. And it was April, 1973, before they found out about Liddy's meeting with Kleindienst on the golf course.

Meanwhile, John Dean telephoned Gray from the White House daily to find what progress the FBI was making. On several occasions, Dean slipped through a private door in Gray's office to pick up FBI teletypes, transcripts and raw reports on the Watergate investigation.

Dean also prepared White House witnesses for their FBI interviews and then sat in on the questioning. And for a while, he was permitted to attend interviews that the prosecutors conducted.

The prosecutors also gave their superior, Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen, progress reports. He passed on the key developments to Dean and, sometimes, to the President himself.

Thus, the White House knew every step the prosecutors were taking and, therefore, could keep ahead of them. But the President's men did not reckon with the determination of a judge named John Sirica, the diligence of the press nor the doggedness of the prosecutors and G-men.

Waterbugger James McCord, under threat of a long prison term, was the first to break. When one of the White House conspirators, Jeb Stuart Magruder, received a lofty new appointment, McCord complained bitterly to John Dean: "I'm going to prison and Magruder's getting his picture in the papers."

To save himself, McCord began to spill what he knew. The prosecutors immediately summoned Liddy, who was tight-lipped as ever about his Watergate role. But they deliberately detained him and engaged him in idle conversation.

This generated alarmed whispers inside the White House that the unpredictable Liddy was talking. A panicky Magruder flew to Bermuda in search of a lawyer who had been recommended. And the President dispatched Dean to Camp David to write a Watergate report.

The cool, calculating Dean suspected the President was setting him up. For if Dean committed the White House cover story to writing, he might make himself the prime scapegoat. He, therefore, put nothing on paper. Instead, he telephoned his lawyer, Thomas Hogan, from Camp David.

Hogan recommended an able trial lawyer, Charles Shaffer, who met them secretly in an out-of-the-way apartment in the Washington suburbs. It took Dean seven hours to summarize the conspiracy. "It has to end," he concluded. "I'm ready to end it."

"Don't run into the machine guns yet," Shaffer advised. He sought out the prosecutors to see what kind of a deal he could make. The chief prosecutor, Earl Silbert, refused to grant Dean immunity. Arrangements were made, nevertheless, for Dean to tell his story so the prosecutors could judge what kind of a witness he would make.

There followed a series of secret meetings with the prosecutors, sometimes lasting most of the night, in Shaffer's Rockville, Md., office.

Magruder, meanwhile, tried to lie to his lawyer, James Sharp, who finally told him bluntly: "Jeb, pretty soon you're going to have to tell me the truth."

When Magruder finally told the truth, Sharp advised him: "Jeb, you've got no choice. We should go to the prosecutors and make the best deal we can."

One by one, Silbert hauled the witnesses before the grand jury. Before he was finished, the Watergate case had been cracked.

A conservative view

Con, pro of testing program

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — For more years than most of us can remember, American school children have been taking nationally standardized tests. Now comes the National Association of Elementary School Principals to say that the tests are biased, meaningless, deceptive, uninformative, and altogether wrong. This is an old controversy, but it merits renewed attention.

Kilpatrick

Paul L. Houts, editor of the magazine, says the tests, well-intended in the beginning, have become "a bogey that haunts us and troubles our sleep."

The issue must concern parents everywhere. The National Education Association estimates that 200 million achievement test forms are used each year in the United States. Those who prepare, publish and score the tests take in revenues of $105 million. Test scores are widely used in the evaluation of teachers and in the admission of students to college. The tests offer the only empirical data we have on how well, or how poorly, the educational system is performing.

Are the tests as useless as these educators say? They make a persuasive case.

By way of example, Edwin F. Taylor dissects half a dozen standard tests in the field of science, and finds all of them wretched. Taylor is a senior research scientist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and editor of the American Journal of Physics. In Taylor's view, many of the stock questions on the science tests are irrelevant, poorly worded, and subject to different "correct" answers.

One such question goes this way: "A damp towel is placed in a warm, dry room. After one hour, the towel probably weighs (a) more than before, (b) about the same, (c) can't tell, and (d) less than before." A perceptive pupil might well inquire, with Taylor, whether "the towel" includes the water it holds?

In another question, the student is asked to complete a sentence: "Scientists study three basic kinds of things — animals, vegetables, and — (a) people, (b) stars, (c) minerals, (d), foods, and (e) religions." The smart student, geared up for the taking of tests, will check (c) and go on to the next question. Will he thus have demonstrated his awareness of what "scientists study?"

David Harman of Harvard is equally critical of standard tests of reading skills. A third-grade vocabulary test, for example, asks the children to check the correct multiple-choice definition of such words as crystal, pasture, genteel, serpent, torrid, proffer, debility, recumbent, and taciturn. Such questions, in his view, are "clearly biased." The child who correctly recognizes these words has a particular kind of reading experience and a particular home environment.

Another reading test asks the child to read a short paragraph about Nan and Bob, who wanted a pet rabbit and built a trap to catch a rabbit. They baited the trap and, after a couple of days, they saw that "the trap had worked." Had they caught (a) a rabbit, (b) a wildcat, (c) a lion, (d) an ant, or (e) a dog?

"A child with some imagination," Harman remarks, "might very easily think that an animal other than a rabbit had been caught by the trap. Answering 'dog,' for instance, would be considered by the examiner an error, although it is a very plausible answer, easily defensible, and on the surface indicates that the child can read and has seen fit to put a different animal into the trap."

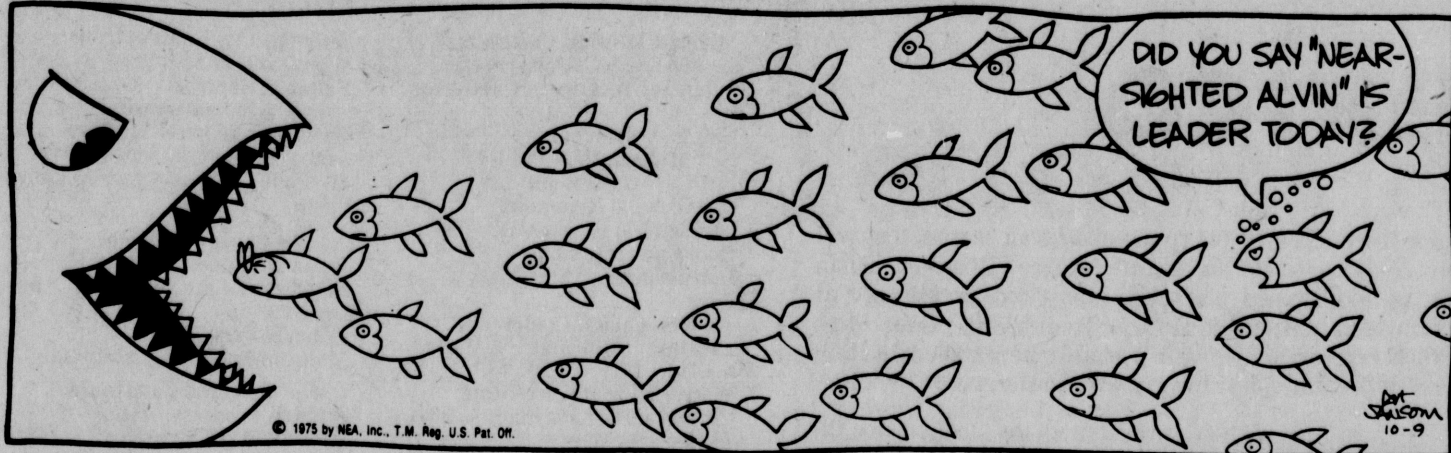

Houts, Taylor, Harman, and the other critics have made a successful assault. The standard national tests may well be as poor as they say they are. But parents and taxpayers surely have a right to some objective evaluation of the educational system they are compelled to support. If test results are to be kept in confidence and not released to the press, as Houts urges, how is the public to appraise the teaching performance? Are the criticisms a massive cop-out? Are the tests inept? Or is the system inept?

This may be one of those problems for which there is no satisfactory solution. For a variety of reasons, public education is in deep trouble in America. We need urgently to know the dimensions of this trouble; we need to know which approaches, techniques, and devices work, and which ones fail. The innocent pupils can't tell us; the defensive educators don't want their schools compared; parents are ill-equipped for evaluation. That leaves the standard tests. Defective as they are, we had better keep them in use.

Slap-dash play works on occasion. South wins the first heart and goes after clubs. The slap-dash player bangs down the ace and king. This drops West's queen and South is sure of 10 tricks. He probably makes an eleventh by leading a diamond toward dummy's queen and may even wind up with twelve if the defense isn't top notch. The expert declarer doesn't do nearly as well. He has bid three notrump and wants to win the game and rubber. He does win the first heart and does lay down his ace of clubs, but his next club play is a low one toward the jack.

West takes his queen and goes about the business of setting up his hearts but this doesn't bother expert South at all. South wanted to guard against a 4-1 club break and the low club to the jack was a perfect safety play.

Give West four clubs he could take his queen then or later, but that would be his only club trick. If East held them he would take his quarry. Later on, South would lead a club from dummy and pick up the rest of the suit.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Louisiana wants to know why it is that the experts always make the winning plays in our column.

Today's article shows quite the opposite. The expert makes three or maybe four notrump. The ordinary player makes four five or even six.

In general, we try to show the best play and the best play wins more often than poorer ones, but it does not win all the time.

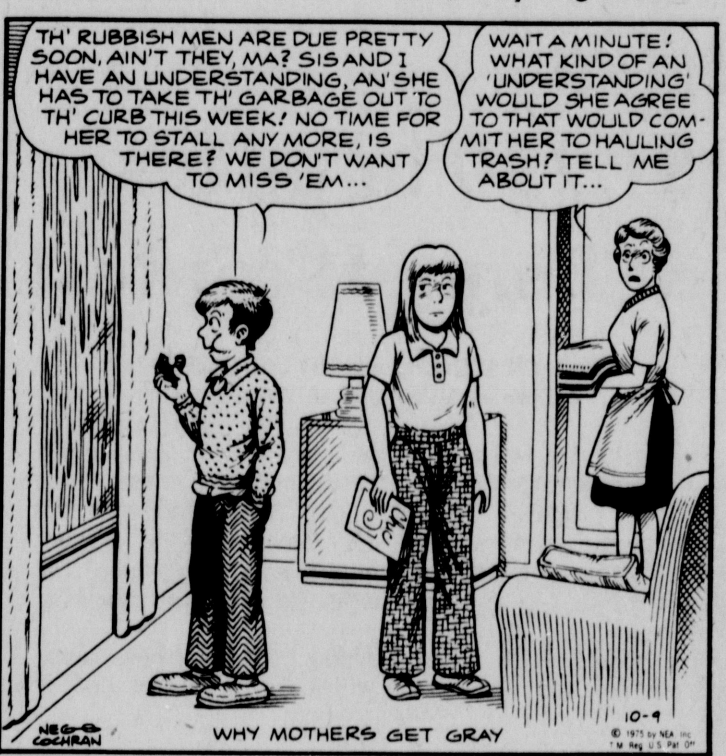

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

S-C Tigers travel to Mexico

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Following last week's 26-13 loss to Central Missouri Conference leader Jefferson City, Sedalia Smith-Cotton heads to Mexico for a non-league gridiron clash against the 10th-ranked team in the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Class 3A high school football poll Friday night.

Smith-Cotton, which got the best passing attack of the season from senior quarterback Bill Rabourn, has its eye on evening up its record at 3-3. But to do that, the Tigers, who have found only limited success on the ground so far this year, will have to crack Mexico's defensive front wall.

Mexico suffered its only loss of the season against four wins last week in one of the state's top 3A match-ups against Marshall, 17-8.

Two mainstays in the Bulldogs' backfield last year's 7-3 club return — quarterback Mark Fine and halfback Billy Fry. Fry, who rushed for 128 yards against Smith-Cotton a year ago in a 20-8 Mexico victory, led all rushers in the Bulldogs' loss last week to Marshall. Fry carried 27 times for 119 yards.

Five-foot-nine, 190-pound Jeff Hotop along with either Chuck Miller, Marion Forrest or Quentin Bakke will open in the Bulldogs' backfield behind quarterback Fine.

Miller, along with Johnny Fry are two of Fine's favorite targets on passes. Miller hauled in five receptions last week against Marshall for 51 yards.

The Tigers had their worst night of the season last week running the football, picking up only 37 yards on the ground. But Rabourn passed for 152 yards.

Bob Fletcher, in his first year as the head coach for the Tigers, hinted before the game that he might alternate Rabourn and "Petie" Cline the way he did in Smith-Cotton's 34-6 victory over St. Joseph Lafayette, went all the way with Rabourn at quarterback.

Fletcher has alternated his runningbacks all season, and will probably continue to do so against Mexico. However, Brian Buckner, who sustained an ankle injury two weeks ago at Lafayette is not at full speed. He's the leading S-C rusher. Most of the rush responsibilities will probably be handled by Bob Trautman, Mike Mack, Jeff Boggs and Sam Hargrave.

The Tigers will be without one of their top linemen for the Mexico game. Senior guard Jim Barnes suffered a knee strain against Jefferson City. His job on the offensive line will be handled 175-pound sophomore Doug Koetting.

Filling in on the defensive front for Barnes will be Andy Adams, a senior, and Frank Norphy, a sophomore.

Friday night's game at Mexico Hawthorne Field will start at 8 p.m.

Next week, the Tigers return to Jennie Jaynes Stadium for homecoming against the Hannibal Pirates.

$70,000 profit for KU athletics

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — An athletic program that finished the fiscal year ending June 30 with more than $70,000 in the black is the report from the University of Kansas.

"Obviously, we are extremely pleased that we are now operating from a sound financial foundation," Clyde Walker, KU athletic director, said Wednesday at the regular meeting of the school's athletic board.

Although the figures appear to represent a substantial profit, it will serve only to reduce the financial debt the program has accumulated, Walker explained.

When named athletic director on July 10, 1973, Walker inherited a fixed debt of $790,638.62 and an operating debt of $257,390.00 for a total debt of $1,048,028.62.

The fixed debt included payments on both the east and west expansions in Memorial Stadium, the artificial turf in the stadium and the office annex to Allen Field House.

Since that time the artificial turf has been paid for, while the over-all fixed debt has been reduced to $584,880.43, Walker said.

"The pleasing aspect of our program," he pointed out, "is that we've been able to reduce our debt without cutting back on any of our existing programs. In fact, the opposite has been true. We've increased many while making several other improvements."

He said the fixed debt as it now stands will not be completely erased until 1990.

Big 8 roundup

Tom Kowelczwk doubtful for MU

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Now that the preseason games are over, Big Eight football coaches turn their attention to breaking out of the gate well in conference openers.

Oklahoma State Coach Jim Stanley said Wednesday the Cowboy quarterback situation seems to be jelling as they prepare for their league opener against Missouri.

"Jimmy Derrick and Scott Burk both look good," he said. "They're both throwing the football much better." Stanley also had praise for Skip Taylor, sophomore halfback, who he said was running well.

Preparing for Oklahoma State "makes your practice time not enough," said Missouri Coach Al Onofrio, who announced offensive guard Tom Kowelczwk was doubtful for the game at Columbia, Mo., Saturday.

Onofrio also said tailback Tony Galbreath and defensive tackle Keith Morrissey probably would play but how long and at what effectiveness still was uncertain.

Kansas State Coach Ellis Rainsberger planned to slack off on his preparation for the Wildcats' opener against Iowa State in Manhattan. "They're still tired, and need to get their freshness back," he said.

Reserve tailback L.T. Edwards is doubtful for the game because of an injured shoulder.

Iowa State Coach Earle Bruce said the key to a Cyclone victory rests with "our defense. We think we can score on the Wildcats as long as our defense can get us good field position."

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne announced split end Chuck Malito apparently will miss the Cornhusker opener against Kansas because of a strained knee.

Tony Davis, starting fullback, also missed Wednesday's practice but was expected to return today.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer liked the Sooner preparations for the Texas game, but said more improvement was needed "if we are going to be ready to play Texas," fifth-ranked nationally.

Offensive guard Terry Webb looks like he "is going to be healthy" Saturday after being hobbled with a knee injury all season, Switzer said.

Bennett Spring will take on the appearance of opening day next Saturday, Oct. 18, when the Bennett Spring Association sponsors a "Rainbow Trout Roundup." Prizes totaling $1,250 will be given away. Virgil Ward of TV fame also will be on hand.

The contest begins at 7:30 a.m. and ends at 6:30 p.m. The entry fee is $1 — you'll also have to pay $1.50 for your daily trout tag.

The prizes, which include trolling motors, fishing tackle, camping gear and 17-foot canoe, will be given away Oct. 19.

Whiteman Air Force Base has announced that its small arms rifle range will be open to area hunters this fall. The range, located off Route D, east of the base, will be open for target practice from 1-3:30 p.m. on Oct. 22-23 and 29-30, and Nov. 5-6, and 12-13.

"The Guns of Autumn," CBS's controversial television special aired last month, may have taken its toll on the rector of St. Giles Episcopal Church in Upper Darby, Pa. Last Saturday, the Rev. Frederick F. Powers put a curse on hunters and their weapons in honor of St. Francis of Assisi, patron saint of animals. "Hunting for sport is not Christian," the Rev. Mr. Powers said.

Specifically, he cursed "in the best sense of the word" the hunter's gunpowder (so it becomes wet and soggy) and his gun barrels and traps (so they be stricken with disabling rot.) His goal? The "conversion" of hunters to target practice.

And finally, the Missouri Conservation Department reports two anglers caught state record fish but their names won't go into the record books because they failed to have their catches authenticated, a requisite for state record recognition.

Rob Roberts pulled a four-pound, nine-ounce bullhead from a lake near his Harrisonville home. The present record is three pounds, two ounces.

Mrs. Myra Woehlke of St. Louis caught a channel catfish that weighed 30 pounds four hours after she caught it. The state record is 30 pounds, 14 ounces, and Mrs. Woehlke's fish would probably have topped that mark fresh from the water.

Both anglers had to settle for 'Master Angler' certificates.

Heard faces Nicklaus in International play

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "I don't know if I can handle the Bear," said Jerry Heard, looking at his assignment today against Jack Nicklaus in the $117,500 International All-Star golf matches.

The whistling Heard, a four-time tour winner, earned the semifinal shot at Nicklaus after a pair of narrow triumphs Wednesday.

Australian Bob Stanton scored two victories to advance to the semifinals against Tom Weiskopf, also seeded into the final four of the three-day tournament.

"I'm swinging so bad. I played lousy. Tom just played lousier," said Heard after his rain-splattered 3 and 2 third round decision over fellow American Tom Kite.

Earlier, Heard had disposed of another young U.S. star, Eddie Pearce, 1-up.

"The more I see of this course, the more I like it," Heard said of the par-72, 7,000-yard Muirfield Village Memorial course, a layout designed by Nicklaus that opened a year ago.

He was two over par in the rainy afternoon duel against Kite, who trimmed Forrest Fezler 5 and 3 in the morning round.

Stanton was amazed at his victories over American J.C. Snead 1-up in 19 holes and Tsutomu Irie of Japan 3 and 1. Irie had ousted Irishman John O'Leary 3 and 2 in the morning play.

"I feel very fortunate to get this far," said the Australian.

The four were playing for a first prize of $25,000 and second-place money of $15,000. An afternoon consolation match between the morning losers was worth $12,500 to the winner and $10,000 to the vanquished.

Cromwell leads Big 8 rushers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nolan Cromwell was a nobody as far as offense was concerned three weeks ago. Today, the Kansas quarterback, a safety last season, leads the Big Eight Conference in rushing.

Cromwell has rushed 62 times for 525 yards or 8.5 yards a carry and an average of 131.3 yards a game. Jim Wingender of Iowa State is second with a 119.5-yard game average and Tony Galbreath of Missouri third with 107.3.

Colorado's David Williams leads in passing and total offense. The Buff sharp-shooter has completed 41 of 65 passes for 468 yards and is followed by Steve Pisarkiewicz of Missouri, 31 of 65 for 438 yards, and Terry Luck of Nebraska, 35 of 60 for 363 yards.

In total offense, Williams has a game average of 169.7 yards, Cromwell 134.5 and Pisarkiewicz 120.0 yards.

Forry Smith of Iowa State tops the receivers, catching 12 for 192 yards. Henry Marshall of Missouri has snared 11 for 200 yards and Stan Ross of Kansas State 11 for 163.

Joe Washington of Oklahoma has the most points, 36. Tom MacKenzie of Colorado and Tony DiRienzo of Oklahoma, two placekickers, are behind Washington, each with 31 points. Missouri's Tim Gibbons has kicked the most field goals, seven.

Chris Golub of Kansas and Kenny Downing of Missouri are tied for the interception lead, each with three.

Cliff Parsley of Oklahoma State continues to lead the punters, having kicked 19 times for 839 yards and a 44.2-yard average. Colorado's Mike McCoy has returned six punts for an average of 16.2 yards.

Eric Franklin of Kansas is out front in kickoff returns. He has run back six kickoffs for 166 yards or an average of 27.7 yards.

Missouri has had many fine receivers, but the first Tiger to be named as an All-American end was Harold Burnine. As a three-year performer (from 1953 through 1955) for Dan Faurot, Burnine caught 75 passes (second to John Henley's Missouri career record of 85 receptions) for 1,145 yards (second to Mel Gray's Tiger career record of 1,491 yards), four touchdowns, and a 15.2-yard average per reception. As a sophomore, he latched on to nine passes for 146 yards and a 16.2 average. In 1954 Harold caught 22 passes for 405 yards, two touchdowns, and an 18.4 average. His senior year, Burnine set a Missouri record for receptions in a single season; he grabbed 44 passes for 594 yards; two touchdowns, and a 13.5 yard average. His total for 1955 not only led the Big Seven Conference, but also it was the season high for the NCAA.

Following his outstanding senior season, Burnine was selected to the All-Big Seven team, and he was honored as an All American.

Grems play tough but lose in semis

GREEN RIDGE — A much improved Sedalia Sacred Heart team pushed Cole Camp to the end before bowing out of the winners division in the Green Ridge Invitational Girls Volleyball Tournament here Wednesday night, 15-7, 10-15, 15-12.
The victory for Cole Camp moved the Bluebirds into Thursday night's finals against host Green Ridge.
In other action Wednesday, Stover captured fifth place with straight set victories over Sedalia Smith-Cotton, 15-11, 15-9. Warsaw came through the consolation side of the 12-team bracket and eliminated Santa Fe (Alma) in straight sets, 15-3, 15-7.
Sacred Heart coach Rita McNally credits the Gremlins' increasing success to "more enthusiasm, team unity and overall better play."
Although the Gremlins are only 1-4 in Kaysinger

Conference action, they have kept their record above the .500 mark for most of the 1975 campaign. The Gremlins now stand at 7-5 with four dates left on the schedule. All are conference affairs with the exception of Saturday's match with Columbia Hickman.
The tournament here will wind up tonight. Smithton and Sacred Heart clash for third place at 7:15 p.m. The Concordia-Warsaw match for consolation kicks off the final night's schedule at 6:30 p.m.
Green Ridge and Cole Camp go after the championship at 8 p.m.

Leagues line up against playoffs

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Representatives of at least four major conferences appear set to oppose formation of a long-awaited national collegiate football playoff for large schools.
But the president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which announced Wednesday it will put the matter to a vote, says such opposition should be weighed.
"We, the members of the council, are merely forwarding the proposal for a vote by members of Division 1 (large schools)," said John A. Fuzak of Michigan State, president of the 707-member NCAA.
"But I think it would be very difficult for that group, that committee, to speak for the institutions they represent," Fuzak added in reference to opposition. The Associated Press learned exists.

A breakdown of the vote among a 17-member football championship feasibility committee which recommended the playoff was declined by Fuzak, who is also chairman of the NCAA's policy-making council.
Prior to the Wednesday announcement, however, the AP learned that the tabulation was 8-4 for advancement of the proposal, with five committee members absent from a meeting last weekend.

The opposition to such a recommendation, it was learned, came from faculty representative Marcus L. Plant of Michigan, Big Ten Conference; athletic director J. D. Morgan of UCLA, Pac-8 Conference; Commissioner Boyd McWhorter of the Southeastern Conference and Alan Chapman of Rice, Southwest Conference.
Those in favor of advancing the proposal were said to include athletic director Ernest C. Casale of Temple, the feasibility committee chairman, and the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame.
Also casting affirmative votes, the AP learned, were athletic directors James R. "Bud" Jack of Utah, Beaver Peters of Dartmouth and Homer Rice of North Carolina along with Robert C. James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, and faculty representative Edwin L. Saxer of Toledo.

Absent from the meeting, it was reported, were coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and John McKay of Southern California, athletic directors Elroy Hirsch of Wisconsin and Carl Maddox of Louisiana State and faculty representative William H. Baughn of Colorado.
"There are those who oppose it and those who are for it," acknowledged Fuzak, who said the January playoff would involve a two-team or four-team format.

"The plan operates on the basis of not interfering or disrupting the bowls," he said. "We've made it possible for membership to look at it, to consider it."
Voting on the proposal during the Jan. 14-17 annual NCAA convention in St. Louis will be delegates of 134 Division I schools, many of them faculty representatives.
"You look at 134 educational institutions," Fuzak said. "There is often a great deal of diversity in the approach and philosophy of each one. It's very difficult to predict what their actions and attitudes will be."

If accepted by a majority of Division I members, the playoff plan would probably go into effect in January of 1977.
Other proposals to be considered in January include reorganization of NCAA divisions in football, establishment of athletic aid on the basis of need and uniformity in the number of players for both visiting and home teams who will be permitted to suit up for each athletic contest.

Balk battle

'Sparky' tees off on Tiant

CINCINNATI (AP) — A "Battle of the Balk" is brewing for the 1975 World Series.
The Cincinnati Reds are ready to raise a fuss over the delivery of Boston Red Sox pitcher Luis Tiant. Ex-American League Merv Rettenmund thinks the Reds have a solid case.
"He'd be called for balking if he were in the National League," said Rettenmund, a former hitting star on two Baltimore World Series teams.
The controversy surfaced Wednesday when the Boston Globe reported that Red Sox manager Sparky Anderson sent films to major league officials raising the issue.
Anderson denied sending films, saying the matter "will be up to the umpires and the president of the league."
The Reds, who send left-hander Don Gullett against Tiant in Saturday's Series opener, rely on base stealing as a major weapon in their high-powered offense. Cincinnati set an all-time record with a success percentage over .820 for the season and ran at will against Pittsburgh on the way to a 3-0 sweep in the National League finals.
The Reds stole a record seven bases in the second game against Pittsburgh and finished with a perfect 11-for-11.

Rettenmund describes Tiant's move to first base as "lightning fast but he doesn't step, he jumps. You definitely have to come to a stop before going to the plate."
"If they call him for it, we'll get the big leads," he said.
Tiant's trademark is his tenacity, says Rettenmund. "He doesn't throw hard, but his location is exceptional and he has all that herky-jerky stuff."
Rettenmund said Cincinnati could have exploited Oakland easier than Boston because Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk is considered "the best defensive catcher in the American League."
"We would rather have played Oakland because all of their catchers were suspect," said Rettenmund, a utility player who came to Cincinnati two seasons ago.
He said there is no chance the Reds will take the Red Sox lightly.
"Every one we've talked to said we are going to be very surprised by Boston. In the past you didn't worry about Boston. They usually beat themselves. But this Boston team is for real," he said.

Undefeated Oakland visits Arrowhead

Losing tough for Wiggins to take

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Explaining he must fight a tendency to overeat in times of stress, Paul Wiggins pushed away the tray of doughnuts and folded his muscular arms across his chest.
"I'm going through hell right now,"
Wiggins was a promising 40-year-old assistant at San Francisco last winter when he was hired to replace the departed Hank Stram and rebuild the once-powerful Kansas City Chiefs.
Now, following a series of unforeseen setbacks, he and his staff are scrambling to rebuild their rebuilding program.
Wiggins' Chiefs are 0-3 this year, preparing to meet the talent-rich 3-0 Oakland Raiders Sunday and staring at a possibly disastrous season.
After creditable, but losing performances against Denver and the New York Jets, the Chiefs, in bowing 20-3 to San Francisco last week, were embarrassing.

Slapped with 11 penalties for 124 yards, they also lost three fumbles, threw an interception, and had two players kicked out of the game on officials' disputed judgment calls.
And there have been injuries, the type that cripple the team as well as the individual. Ed Budde, all-pro left guard, was lost for the season with knee surgery.
He was replaced by Randy Beisler, who played well until finishing his season with a dislocated neck against San Francisco. To replace Beisler on the active roster Wiggins has plucked from the list of free agents Bob Maddox, a second-year defensive lineman.
Starting quarterback Mike Livingston has missed two games, but may be back against Oakland. Fullback MacArthur Lane has missed every regular season game with injuries, but seems on the mend.
His backup, Jeff Kinney, suffered severe rib bruises against the 49ers and spent a night in the hospital. If he's unable to start Sunday, either Morris LeGrand, another free agent, or dependable regular Ed Podolak will step in.
Former all-pro wide receiver

Otis Taylor has been slowed by fluid on the knee and remains a question mark.
Earlier this week, Wiggins spoke of adversity.
"As down and out as most people think we are," he said, "I like this football team. I think this team will respond."
"We're in a very adverse situation right now. After this game Sunday we'll know as much about our team as we've ever known."
After arriving in Kansas City last January, Wiggins quickly established warmth, humor and honesty as his personal trademarks. Those traits could now be likened to his description of his team. "We've bent, but we haven't broken."

"Their defense against our offense," he said of Oakland, "in the eyes of the sports expert will be a mismatch."
"I don't totally dislike having the role of the underdog, though," he added. "But if you're the underdog week after week, you're not going to keep your job as a head coach."
He stole another glance at his watch. It was almost noon and there was much, much work to be done.

C. Arnholt Smith under investigation

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The district attorney's office has subpoenaed the financial records of the San Diego Padres in an investigation of financier C. Arnholt Smith.
Smith is a former owner of the National League baseball club. He sold it in 1974 for a reported $8.25 million to Chicago millionaire Ray Kroc, owner of a fast-food chain.
Dist. Atty. Ed Miller is trying to learn whether Smith, former chairman of U.S. National Bank and the Westgate-California Corp., violated state laws during the collapse of his financial empire.
Dep. Dist. Atty. Steven Davis said Wednesday that his office is interested specifically in the finances involved in the sale of the Padres.
Southern Cal. has 25 women on aid
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twenty-five women attending the University of Southern California are on athletic scholarships.
"USC now has one of the best, if not the best, women's intercollegiate athletic program in the country," associated athletic director Barbara Bridges said Wednesday of the six-sport women's program.
Among the women on scholarship are gymnast Gale Wyckoff, swimmers Heather Greenwood and Linda Stimpson, tennis players Diane Desfor and Barbara Hallquist and volleyball player Lori Jepson.

Is Ford's tax cut feasible?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The question that arises immediately in connection with President Ford's proposed $28 billion tax cut is whether it is feasible, economically or politically.

Nearly three-quarters of budget expenditures are what has come to be termed uncontrollable. That is, because of laws and actions made in prior years, like it or not, the government is committed to spend those funds.

If, as the President said, spending seems headed toward $423 billion next year, a $28 billion cut would amount to a reduction of between 6 and 7 per cent, not merely of the one-quarter of the budget under control, but of the total budget.

Whether such an accomplishment is possible, especially in a politically volatile election year, is debatable at best. Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., chairman of the House Budget Committee, immediately called it unrealistic.

What are these "uncontrollables" that leave the President and Congress so few options in changing the course of federal spending? The biggest by far are expenditures for Social Security and railroad retirement, accounting for roughly one-third. Smaller in percentage, but so numerous as to underscore the point, are a basketful of other expenditures, including unemployment assistance, veterans benefits, medicare and Medicaid, housing aid, revenue sharing.

Of growing importance is interest on the national debt, which amounted to "only" $10.3 billion as recently as fiscal 1967 but which had risen to $22 billion in fiscal 1975, the result of more borrowing and higher interest rates.

The President's hope that both taxes and government expenditures can be cut simultaneously is consistent with the economic and political philosophy he has espoused since he took office — and before.

In his view, a growing federal establishments threatens to drain away the prosperity and vitality of America, "as one big spending program after another has been piled on the federal pyramid..." The bureaucratic superstructure, he maintains, is "taking a larger share of your personal income and creating record budget deficits and inflation," while at the same time "trying to run too much of your daily life."

This is a very basic dispute that underlies almost every political and economic argument in the country today, and it has long been so. It is in the substratum of the American psyche, sometimes quiescent, sometimes boiling.

The President, it now seems, believes the underground rumblings must be quieted or the pyramid, like a volcano, might blow its head. It seems to be his hope that he can seal it off before that happens.

However, a look at some comparative statistics suggest the situation might not exist or be resolved at the federal level alone. The biggest percentage increases in government spending in recent years have been at city and state levels.

Part of this might be due to increases in revenue distribution, or aid from federal government receipts, but not entirely.

The Tax Foundation, which describes itself as a nonpartisan, nonprofit research and educational organization, shows that in recent years per capita Federal expenditures have fallen slightly in percentage while state spending has tended higher.

In almost any statistical breakdown of governmental spending, whether at local, state or federal level, the fact that steps out of the number in bold relief is that debt is rising at all levels of government.

This suggests, of course, that Americans seem to be expecting more from their governments than they are willing or able to pay for. No problem seems too big to be overcome, but the expense seems to be.

Turning back the growing demand for governmental services will be difficult, politically and economically, because it pits two basic but opposing American views about government that have existed since the Revolution.

Ford seems to be attacking not just the amount of federal spending and the spread of federal control, but a notion he fears might also become ingrained in the American spirit — that bills are indefinitely postponable, and that meanwhile you can get something for nothing.

Ford to be fitted for sports coats

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — President Ford's schedule includes fittings for two new sport coats when he visits Detroit on Friday.

Jim Auzins, owner of Lloyd's Gentlemen's Tailor in Ford's hometown of Grand Rapids, says he will go to Detroit for the fittings.

Ford has patronized Lloyd's for more than two decades.

The jackets are made of material imported from Scotland. One is a red and blue glen plaid, while the other is two-tone brown with shades of blue and beige, Auzins said. Another tailor is making Mrs. Ford a coat made from the brown material.

The tailor said the President wears a 44 long coat, has a 4 1/2-inch chest, 17 3/4-inch sleeves and a 38-inch waist.

Car strikes truck; woman, 62, killed

BREWER, Mo (AP) — A 62-year-old Cape Girardeau, Mo., woman was killed Wednesday in Perry County, when her northbound car hit the rear end of a parked semi-trailer truck. The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 10:30 p.m. on Interstate 55, 2 1/2 miles south of here.

The victim was identified as Marie Palmer. The driver of the parked truck was not injured.

The Rabbit is Amazing.
But don't take our word for it.

Road & Track "This car does it all; it's small, light, roomy and fast, with nimble and responsive steering, ride and handling. Best sedan under $3,500!"
Road Test Magazine "It is the finest example to date of a totally integrated passenger car, useful anywhere in the world, and is qualified as no other imported car is for 1975 for the Road Test Engineering Award!"
Popular Mechanics "Volkswagen's Rabbit is the best value for 1975!"
Car & Driver "Whole populations of drivers will live for years with this car, strongly impressed by its generally nimble disposition and its sensitive feel of the road through the steering wheel and brake pedal!"
Esquire "It is the specific type of car that Detroit will be building in the 1980's."

Sinai monitoring

Limits included in pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional resolution approving assignment of American monitors in the Sinai also includes two provisions designed to limit any U.S. military involvement in the Middle East.

The resolution, expected to be approved by the House and the Senate this week, specifies that congressional approval of the monitors "does not signify approval of the Congress of any other agreement, understanding or commitment made by the executive branch."

It also would require the Americans to be withdrawn immediately if new hostilities occur between Israel and Egypt or if Congress determines them to be in peril. The monitors would operate surveillance stations in the Sinai to watch for any violations of the Egyptian-Israeli truce.

The House Wednesday night approved the plan 341-69 and sent it to the Senate where final action was delayed until Friday. Congressional leaders had hoped to give the resolution final approval by Thursday.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who mediated the Sinai accord in August, told the Senate panel Tuesday the stationing of technicians in the Sinai is "an investment in peace" in the Middle East.

He said "it is a role we accepted reluctantly at the request of both sides — and only when it was clear that there would be no agreement without it."

Kissinger said four related documents outlining American assurances to Israel and Egypt are not part of the Sinai accord. While some of their provisions are considered binding, Kissinger said most are "binding statements of American diplomatic practice. Except for those related to oil, there are none not in the area of diplomatic practice," he said. Kissinger, questioned about assurances to consult with Israel on what action "diplomatic or otherwise" the United States might take in the event Israel's security is threatened by a major power, responded emphatically that "nothing in any commitment of the United States involves the use of the armed forces."

U.N. officials captive; refugees seek asylum

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A dozen Latin refugees holding five United Nations officials hostage for the second day, waited Thursday for a country to give them asylum. Argentina has agreed to give them safe passage.

"We are still waiting and we are not going to leave until we get a country to take us," said the apparent leader of the group, a man with a Brazilian accent, who called himself group spokesman.

He said negotiations were going on with seven countries, including Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and an unidentified Socialist nation. Earlier, only Sweden and Belgium were mentioned.

A spokesman at U.N. headquarters in New York said Algeria also was being considered.

The refugee spokesman was referred to as "number one" by a woman with a Chilean accent, who answered the phone at the offices of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees. The group seized the offices with guns at midday Wednesday, demanding haven in another country because they were destitute in Argentina.

John Kelly, the Irish legal representative of Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees at Geneva, arrived in Buenos Aires, apparently to mediate with the refugees.

The spokesman for the group said the number of refugees holding the hostages was 12, eleven Chileans. He declined to give their names but said they included two or three women and a Brazilian.

The hostages included Robert Jean Muller, the Swiss chief representative of the High Commissioner for Refugees in Argentina, and nationals of Austria, Chile and Argentina.

Argentine Foreign Minister Manuel Arauz Castex on Wednesday night announced the government's agreement to grant the refugees safe passage to another country if one could be found to accept them.

The spokesman for the group sounded tired as he spoke with The Associated Press over the telephone. He described the offices as spacious and comfortable. Food and blankets have been provided.

The refugees issued their third communique, saying the hostages "spent a normal night," and appealed for the "good will" of the international community to solve the case and find a country for the refugees.

They seized 14 hostages originally but released the eight women among them in a gesture of good will and an Argentine man who had suffered an epileptic attack.

The spokesman said the refugees had revolvers and a hand grenade and threatened to kill the hostages or blow everyone up if the police moved in. Police said they had orders not to interfere.

625 cases involved

Subsidy overpayments found

On the basis of a five-county "redetermination" check that is now nearly complete, 625 cases of persons receiving excessive monthly federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments have been detected, it was reported Wednesday by Michele Groves, assistant manager of the district Social Security Administration office, 825 Thompson Blvd.

About 60 per cent of these cases involve sums of less than $80 monthly, she estimated.

A total of 1,820 individual cases have been evaluated in Pettis, Saline, Cooper, Benton and Morgan Counties. Of these, 1,000 persons whose payments were checked live in Pettis County.

The SSI program, operated by the federal Social Security Administration, was created in January of 1974 to replace three federal aid programs formerly administered by state welfare agencies. These were the old age assistance, permanent and total disability and aid to the blind programs. A special Missouri supplemental payment program was created by the state Legislature to insure that no person's income would be lower under the SSI program than under the former program.

About half the SSI overpayment cases, Miss Groves said, resulted from increases in social security payments. Under federal regulations, the amounts of individual SSI payments are based upon each recipient's income. Because Social Security payments are considered income, increases in these benefits are supposed to be automatically coupled with a decrease in SSI payments.

This has not been done in many instances because of the failure of SSI participants to report increases in income from Social Security payments or other sources and also because of computer lag in correlating information regarding changes in individual income status.

Miss Groves declined to attribute the failure of individuals to report income changes completely to dishonesty, citing "confusion" and "ignorance" as the probable main factors involved. She said "the complexity of the program" contributed to this problem, noting that "there have been a lot of legislative changes involved."

Another factor leading to overpayments, she said, is the fact that changes in SSI payments may only be made on a quarterly basis, thus permitting at least several months of overpayment even when changes in income are promptly reported. Also, recent judicial decisions have upheld the right of persons whose SSI incomes have been lowered to appeal the decision within 30 days. Until the dispute is resolved, the payments cannot be affected.

On the national level, top officials of the Social Security Administration said overpayments in the first 18 months of the SSI program have reached $460.8 million. That figure, it was reported, may eventually reach between $700 million and $800 million.

The current five-county survey will be repeated periodically in an attempt to minimize local and area SSI overpayments, Miss Groves said.

Purchases flooding the country

Iran is suffering from too much, too fast

ISFAHAN, Iran (AP) — The Shah of Iran is spending oil dollars on arms and machinery so fast that the onrush of imports is choking his empire.

In his drive to modernize ancient Persia, the monarch is buying everything from ultrasophisticated F14 jet fighters to milk and cookies for schoolchildren's snacks.

Goods are flooding in from abroad at such a rate that ships wait more than three months for a berth in Iran's Persian Gulf ports. Airport depots are jammed.

Officials at Khorramshahr and Bandar Shahpur ports say they are having trouble getting enough food and water to supply crews of ships lying at anchor in the line-up. Crates lie stacked across acres of terrain at the airport here in central Iran and at the Tehran airport 220 miles north.

"This has been going on for months," said a diplomat. "It's a joke. I don't mean a joke. It's pathetic. It's a screw-up, the world's biggest screw-up."

One European firm supplied a ready-made aluminum plant but couldn't start up because a key component got lost in the import flood. No one could find it, so officials gave up and had another one flown in.

Even air freight is no guarantee. Bell Helicopter International, a Texas firm supplying hundreds of choppers and training their pilots, flies in nearly everything — but still can't keep track.

"We just found an engine that was shipped from Texas in 1973," said a U.S. technician. "It was stuck in a warehouse."

He added that "we don't have any parts right now.... A lot of common stock hardware like nuts and bolts we don't have. We are grinding helicopters for lack of parts every day."

A U.S. Defense Department audit last spring found only 4 per cent of helicopter parts ordered by the Isfahan training base ever arrived. Those that did took an average of more than a year in transit.

Ford threatens veto; against aid to cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford vowed Thursday night to veto an election-year tax cut if Congress sends him one without clamping a lid on federal spending.

Ford also said he doesn't think it would be healthy for Washington to bail out any city "that has handled its fiscal affairs as irresponsibly over a long period of time as New York City ..."

Ford disclosed that he has cancelled a trip to Louisville, Ky., next Thursday, for reasons of presidential security and also because of the possibility of danger to others. He noted that there has been "some turmoil in Louisville as a result of court-ordered, forced busing to achieve racial balance in the public schools," and once again declared his own opposition to such busing.

The busing controversy has stirred demonstrations, and Ford said he had been advised to cancel the trip because of "some unusual circumstances in Louisville at the present time." Officials in Louisville said they anticipated largescale anti-busing demonstrations.

At a nationally televised and broadcast news conference, the President said he is satisfied he has a good organization and a good manager for his 1976 election bid.

Ford also said he is not going to move toward the political right in an effort to court conservatives who might otherwise side with former California governor Ronald Reagan next year.

He said his record in the House and the White House has been in the middle of the road. "I intend to stay there," he said. "It's the area where most Americans agree."

"This has been my record for 27 years in politics and I don't intend to deviate for any temporary political advantage," Ford said.

Ford said he has seen nothing so far that would lead him to give any answer but "no" to requests for aid for New York City, which faces the threat of defaulting on its bonds.

He said he has heard of no congressional relief plans that would justify his approval, has found no substantial sentiment for any legislation to bail out the city.

"I do not think it's a healthy thing for the federal government to bail out a city, and I mean any city, that has handled its fiscal affairs as irresponsibly over a long period of time as New York City," Ford said.

Ford said he has great sympathy for New Yorkers. He noted that Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns has said he would favor federal aid if New York came up with a balanced city budget and with state guarantees that it would stay that way. But Ford said if New York reached that point in solving its own problems "it hardly seems needed or necessary for the federal government to get involved."

Dealing with his own $28-billion, tax-cut plan, Ford insisted he would not shy from a politically unpopular election-year veto of tax legislation without a ceiling on spending.

"I have said with great emphasis that the American people want a $28-billion tax-cut and a $28-billion reduction in the growth of federal expenditures," he said.

"I absolutely, without any equivocation, say that if the Congress plays politics by sending a tax reduction bill to my desk without a responsible restraint on federal spending ... I would not hesitate to veto it," the President said.

Spanish officers arrested for separatist connections

MADRID, Spain (AP) — New evidence of unrest in the Spanish army, a traditional source of strength for Gen. Francisco Franco, was revealed Thursday in the arrest of three officers with possible links to Basque separatist guerrillas.

As Franco, under pressure at home and abroad, faced his worst political crisis ever, army headquarters in Barcelona announced they had arrested three officers in connection with investigations into an underground network of antigovernment subversives.

Fourteen officers now have been arrested in the investigations. Nine have been charged with sedition. Political opponents of the regime say they have enlisted the support of hundreds of young officers and charged that army authorities dare not follow their probe to the source for fear of setting loose a landslide of dissidence.

The army disclosed the arrests in a brief one-paragraph communique, without identifying the men. But military sources said they were two captains and an artillery major known to be closely linked to the 11 officers previously arrested — two in Barcelona last February and nine in Madrid in August.

At the same time, the army announced a special antisubversive brigade was engaged in maneuvers in the Cordoba area, its base in southern Spain. The army described the maneuvers as routine, but observers could remember no precedent and no previous mention of the brigade.

In Barcelona, the military sources identified the three officers arrested as artillery Maj. Enrique Lopez-Amor, cavalry Capt. Arturo Gurrearan Granados and infantry Capt. Juan Diego

Garcia. They said Gurrearan had been in charge of officer training in universities in the Barcelona area until he was removed earlier this year.

Amendment defeated

Senate supports use of troops for rescue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, in a preliminary vote, indicated overwhelming support Thursday to authorize sending 200 American civilians to monitor the Israeli-Egyptian peace accord in the Sinai.

By an 85-to-9 vote, the Senate refused to return the resolution adopted by the House Wednesday to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., had urged that the measure be sidetracked on grounds that it and related agreements by the United States with Israel and Egypt should be resubmitted as treaties subject to Senate ratification by a two-thirds vote.

Abourezk was supported by Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, who also warned that stationing Americans at surveillance stations in the Middle East involves risks that are too high and costs that are too great.

The Senate also approve a House-approved amendment specifying that the resolution gives the President no more authority to use armed forces in hostilities than he already has under the Constitution and the War Powers Act.

The Senate voted to delay its week-long recess until it completes action on the Sinai resolution. But Mansfield said if the Senate makes any changes would delay final congressional action until after the House returns Oct. 20.

Mansfield, D-Mont., said the technical resolution, requested by the Ford administration as part of a new Israeli-Egyptian peace accord, will trigger far-reaching U.S. commitments of undetermined extent.

The Senate majority leader said it will involve the United States directly in the Middle East for the first time.

"By placing the American flag in the middle of the conflict the chances of our involvement in the next round of fighting, should it occur, will be greatly increased, as will the danger of a confrontation with the Soviet Union," Mansfield said in a Senate speech.

But physical bottlenecks are compounded by lack of trained manpower. When the government recently bought 2,000 trucks to help move merchandise, it opened a school to teach drivers how to use them.

"You're talking about 50 per cent literacy," said a diplomat. "So basically you have a limited manpower pool that's trainable."

To find pilots for the 359 F4 Phantoms, F5 and F14 jet fighters bought or ordered for the air force, the government runs ads in newspapers.

They offer $1,136 monthly salaries, five-day weeks, free housing, free schooling and a guarantee of more than $50,000 in retirement pay after 30 years of service.

But one requirement is a secondary education and there are only 2,200 high schools in this nation of 32 million people. In addition, qualified Iranians find the lure of big money in private commerce so irresistible that the turnover in some government ministries is 30 to 40 per cent, officials report.

Parkinson's Law at work in state

Parkinson's Law is alive and well in Missouri.

The law, you will recall, goes this way: in any organization the number of subordinates multiplies at a predeterminable annual rate regardless of the amount of work actually turned out.

That invaluable organization, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey, recently took a hard look at trends in local and state government. Its findings substantiate the validity of Parkinson's Law.

For example, take education. Between 1964 and 1974 employment in the public schools increased more than 50 per cent, payrolls 164 per cent. Yet the actual growth in enrollment during this period was only 13 per cent.

On the state level, the number of employees in higher education doubled, with the payroll increasing a whopping 279 per cent.

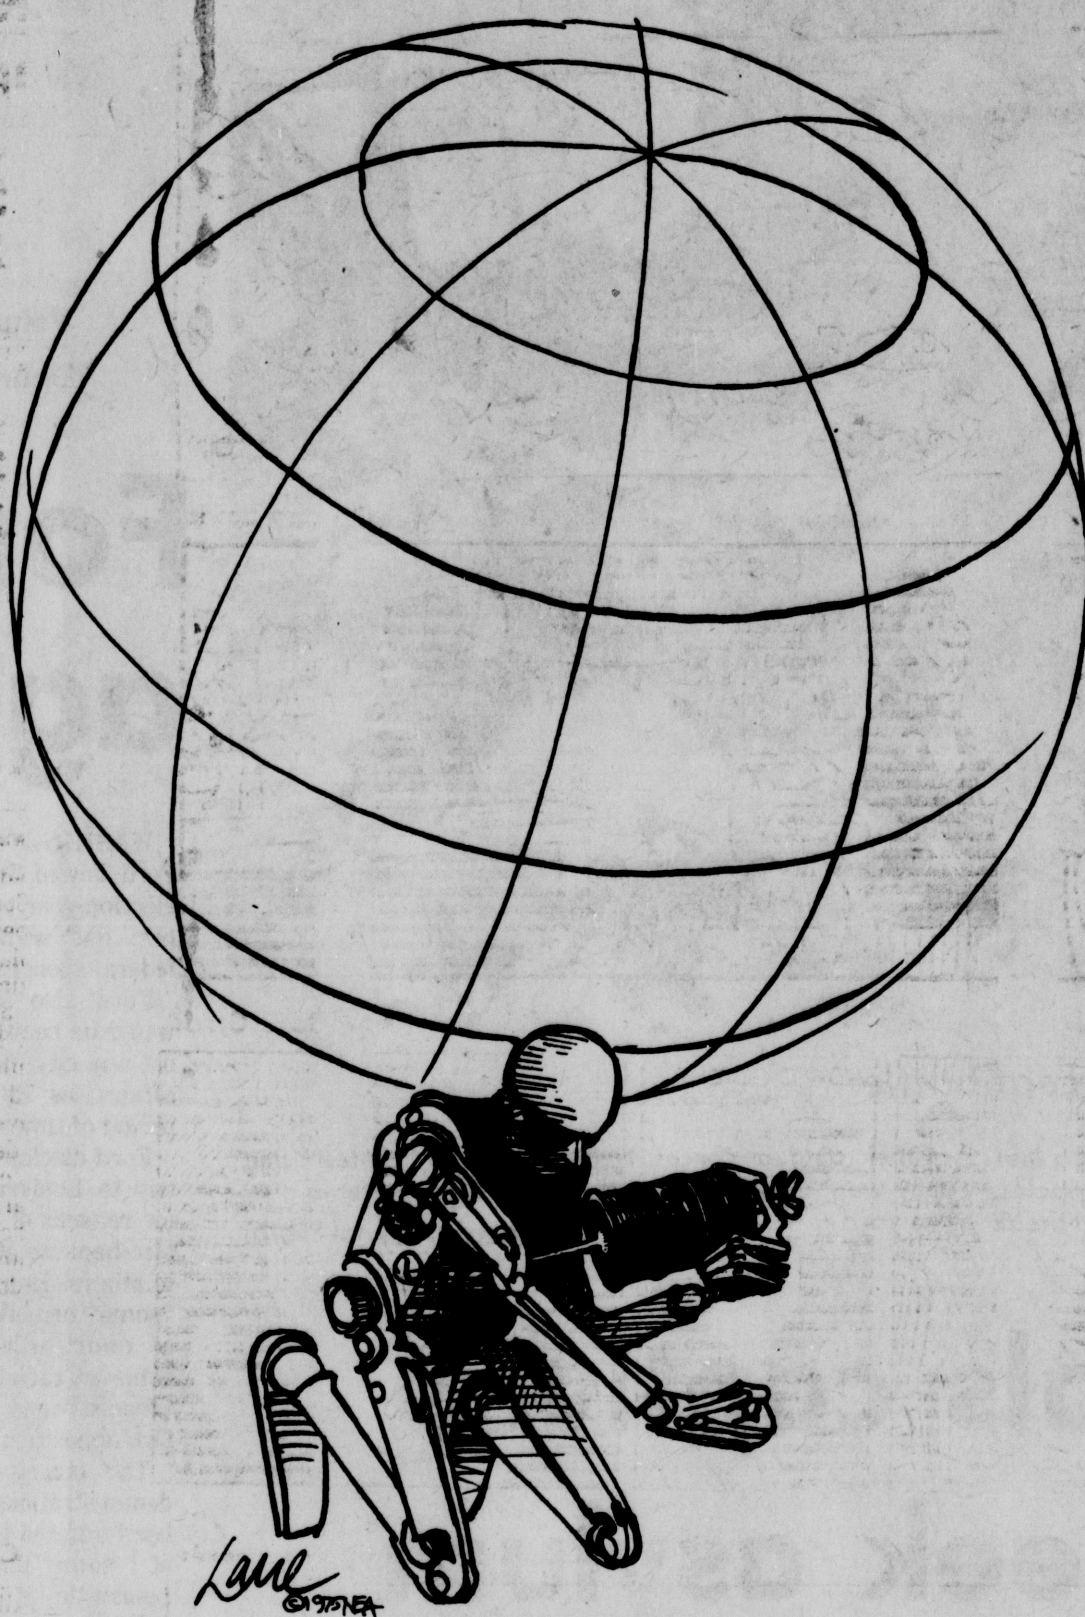

In state and local government, employees grew at almost six times the rate of the population. Payrolls in these categories almost tripled.

And despite all the talk about how the federal bureaucracy is out of control, in the 1964-74 decade in Missouri the number of state and local government employees increased THREE times faster than those in federal service.

As for the matter of salaries for public employees, the cry has always been that they should at least equal those paid in the private sector, as indeed they should. But the survey found that 1974 average salaries for state and local government employees were higher than those in private business and industry.

Pointing out that since salaries account for more than 70 per cent of government costs, the survey warns that unless curbs are put on personnel expenditures, tax increases will soon be necessary on the state and local levels.

Self-perpetuating bureaucracies have long been a characteristic of all governments. But at today's prices, the time may rapidly be approaching when taxpayers will shout, "enough!"

Watergate 'heroes' were investigators

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Still hidden in secret grand jury transcripts and locked prosecutors' files is the dramatic story of how the Watergate case was broken.

We have spent weeks interviewing FBI sources, government prosecutors and defense attorneys to get the details that never came out at the public hearings.

The real heroes of Watergate, we have concluded, were the FBI agents who wouldn't let the White House obstruct their investigation and the original Watergate prosecutors who painstakingly fitted the jigsaw pieces into a criminal conspiracy.

The three unsung prosecutors — Earl Silbert, Seymour Glazer and Donald Campbell — handed the case on a silver platter to the special prosecutor and his staff of 90.

They had no way of knowing in June, 1972, that President Nixon personally had issued the order to cover up the trail of break-ins, bag jobs, forgeries, frame-ups, rough-ups and buggings, which we now know as Watergate.

The FBI agents, therefore, encountered incredible obstacles from the moment they started down the Watergate trail. The key witnesses either lied outright or withheld vital information.

As an example, the G-men for weeks couldn't identify the two chief culprits, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, who were known to them only as George Leonard and Ed Warren.

The notorious pair were well known, of course, inside the White House, which paid them blackmail to lay low. The CIA, which provided the phony identities, also knew them.

Late in the morning of the Watergate arrests, Liddy sought out then-Attorney General Richard Kleindienst on the Burning Tree golf course. Thus, the attorney general actually met one of the ringleaders whom the FBI was seeking.

On July 6, the CIA finally delivered a memo to the acting FBI director, Pat Gray, revealing that Liddy and Hunt had been furnished false identities. Yet Gray locked the memo in his safe, without breathing a word of it to his own agents.

Not until November, 1972, did the prosecutors learn the true identities of George Leonard and Ed Warren. And it was April, 1973, before they found out about Liddy's meeting with Kleindienst on the golf course.

Meanwhile, John Dean telephoned Gray from the White House daily to find what progress the FBI was making. On several occasions, Dean slipped through a private door in Gray's office to pick up FBI teletypes, transcripts and raw reports on the Watergate investigation.

Dean also prepared White House witnesses for their FBI interviews and then sat in on the questioning. And for a while, he was permitted to attend interviews that the prosecutors conducted.

The prosecutors also gave their superior, Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen, progress reports. He passed on the key developments to Dean and, sometimes, to the President himself.

Thus, the White House knew every step the prosecutors were taking and, therefore, could keep ahead of them. But the President's men did not reckon with the determination of a judge named John Sirica, the diligence of the press nor the doggedness of the prosecutors and G-men.

Waterbugger James McCord, under threat of a long prison term, was the first to break. When one of the White House conspirators, Jeb Stuart Magruder, received a lofty new appointment, McCord complained bitterly to John Dean: "I'm going to prison and Magruder's getting his picture in the papers."

To save himself, McCord began to spill what he knew. The prosecutors immediately summoned Liddy, who was tight-lipped as ever about his Watergate role. But they deliberately detained him and engaged him in idle conversation.

This generated alarmed whispers inside the White House that the unpredictable Liddy was talking. A panicky Magruder flew to Bermuda in search of a lawyer who had been recommended. And the President dispatched Dean to Camp David to write a Watergate report.

The cool, calculating Dean suspected the President was setting him up. For if Dean committed the White House cover story to writing, he might make himself the prime scapegoat. He, therefore, put nothing on paper. Instead, he telephoned his lawyer, Thomas Hogan, from Camp David.

Hogan recommended an able trial lawyer, Charles Shaffer, who met them secretly in an out-of-the-way apartment in the Washington suburbs. It took Dean seven hours to summarize the conspiracy. "It has to end," he concluded. "I'm ready to end it."

"Don't run into the machine guns yet," Shaffer advised. He sought out the prosecutors to see what kind of a deal he could make. The chief prosecutor, Earl Silbert, refused to grant Dean immunity. Arrangements were made, nevertheless, for Dean to tell his story so the prosecutors could judge what kind of a witness he would make.

There followed a series of secret meetings with the prosecutors, sometimes lasting most of the night, in Shaffer's Rockville, Md., office.

Magruder, meanwhile, tried to lie to his lawyer, James Sharp, who finally told him bluntly: "Jeb, pretty soon you're going to have to tell me the truth."

When Magruder finally told the truth, Sharp advised him: "Jeb, you've got no choice. We should go to the prosecutors and make the best deal we can."

One by one, Silbert hauled the witnesses before the grand jury. Before he was finished, the Watergate case had been cracked.

A conservative view

Con, pro of testing program

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — For more years than most of us can remember, American school children have been taking nationally standardized tests. Now comes the National Association of Elementary School Principals to say that the tests are biased, meaningless, deceptive, uninformative, and altogether wrong. This is an old controversy, but it merits renewed attention.

Kilpatrick

The association has devoted the whole of the summer issue of its magazine, "Principal," to a devastating assault upon these familiar tests. The several authors, attacking from different quarters, cannot find a single good thing to say about them.

Paul L. Houts, editor of the magazine, says the tests, well-intended in the beginning, have become "a bogey that haunts us and troubles our sleep."

The issue must concern parents everywhere. The National Education Association estimates that 200 million achievement test forms are used each year in the United States. Those who prepare, publish and score the tests take in revenues of $105 million. Test scores are widely used in the evaluation of teachers and in the admission of students to college. The tests offer the only empirical data we have on how well, or how poorly, the educational system is performing.

Are the tests as useless as these educators say? They make a persuasive case.

By way of example, Edwin F. Taylor dissects half a dozen standard tests in the field of science, and finds all of them wretched. Taylor is a senior research scientist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and editor of the American Journal of Physics. In Taylor's view, many of the stock questions on the science tests are irrelevant, poorly worded, and subject to different "correct" answers.

One such question goes this way: "A damp towel is placed in a warm, dry room. After one hour, the towel probably weighs (a) more than before, (b) about the same, (c) can't tell, and (d) less than before." A perceptive pupil might well inquire, with Taylor, whether "the towel" includes the water it holds?

In another question, the student is asked to complete a sentence: "Scientists study three basic kinds of things — animals, vegetables, and — (a) people, (b) stars, (c) minerals, (d), foods, and (e) religions." The smart student, geared up for the taking of tests, will check (c) and go on to the next question. Will he thus have demonstrated his awareness of what "scientists study"?

David Harman of Harvard is equally critical of standard tests of reading skills. A third-grade vocabulary test, for example, asks the children to check the correct multiple-choice definition of such words as crystal, pasture, genteel, serpent, torrid, proffer, debility, recumbent, and taciturn. Such questions, in his view, are "clearly biased." The child who correctly recognizes these words has a particular kind of reading experience and a particular home environment.

Another reading test asks the child to read a short paragraph about Nan and Bob, who wanted a pet rabbit and built a trap to catch a rabbit. They baited the trap and, after a couple of days, they saw that "the trap had worked." Had they caught (a) a rabbit, (b) a wildcat, (c) a lion, (d) an ant, or (e) a dog?

"A child with some imagination," Harman remarks, "might very easily think that an animal other than a rabbit had been caught by the trap. Answering 'dog,' for instance, would be considered by the examiner an error, although it is a very plausible answer, easily defensible, and on the surface indicates that the child can read and has seen fit to put a different animal into the trap."

Houts, Taylor, Harman, and the other critics have made a successful assault. The standard national tests may well be as poor as they say they are. But parents and taxpayers surely have a right to some objective evaluation of the educational system they are compelled to support. If test results are to be kept in confidence and not released to the press, as Houts urges, how is the public to appraise the teaching performance? Are the criticisms a massive cop-out? Are the tests inept? Or is the system inept?

This may be one of those problems for which there is no satisfactory solution. For a variety of reasons, public education is in deep trouble in America. We need urgently to know the dimensions of this trouble; we need to know which approaches, techniques, and devices work, and which ones fail. The innocent pupils can't tell us; the defensive educators don't want their schools compared; parents are ill-equipped for evaluation. That leaves the standard tests. Defective as they are, we had better keep them in use.

Drawing the line at New York City

WASHINGTON — "Mr. President, are you ready for this morning's briefing?"

"Yes, Henry, go ahead."

"Congress has just passed a bill making it possible for us to give arms to Turkey."

Buchwald

"Good. How much do you think we should give them?"

"Maybe $500 million to start with. Those bases mean a lot to us."

"It's a steal."

"We've just made a deal with Spain for air and naval bases over the next five years."

"That's nice. What will it cost us?"

"I would say between six and seven hundred and fifty million dollars over the next five years. They wanted $2 billion in military aid, but we put our foot down."

"I'm glad you did. We can't throw money around."

"We hope to get the $2 billion for Israel, and the $750 million for Egypt before the end of the congressional session."

"I should think so."

"We're getting a little resistance on the defense budget from Congress. We asked for $120 billion, but the House only wants to give us $111 billion."

"Dammit, don't they realize such reductions are a sure way to make us No. 2 in a world where only No. 1 counts?"

"I warned them about that, sir, but you know how they are on The Hill. They never think about being No. 1."

"I'm going to have to go out to some more Republican fund-raising dinners and warn the American people that Congress is playing fast and loose with national security."

"I think you should, sir. The people want to see you, and they want to hear what you're up against."

"What else do you have to tell me?"

"The Treasury revised the U. S. deficit figures from $60 billion to $70 billion and possibly $80 billion at the rate we're borrowing money."

"Well, it can't be helped. We need a strong economy, and we can't do it with a balanced budget."

"There's one more thing. Mayor Beame is in the outer office to see you about a loan for New York City."

"That's ridiculous! How does he expect the United States to loan him any money?"

"He's offering you U. S. air and naval bases. He claims his are better than the ones we have in Turkey and Spain. He says he'll give you the Brooklyn Navy Yard, La Guardia Field and State Island on a long-term lease."

"That's outrageous! We're not going to finance Beame just because he has military bases we need."

"He also said he is willing to pull his troops back from the George Washington Bridge and out of the Lincoln Tunnel in exchange for $2 billion in aid."

"Beame thinks he can get out of his fiscal problems by scaring us with war with New Jersey. But it isn't going to work. If he gets away with it, we'll be blackmailed by every mayor in America."

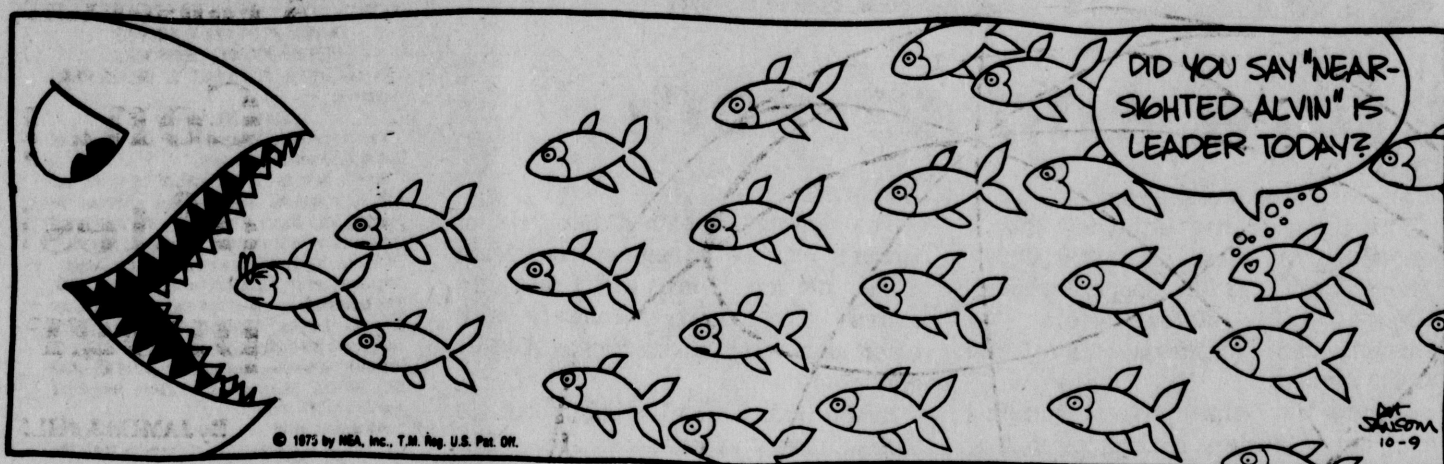

"Exactly my feelings, sir. We can't play sugar daddy for every bankrupt city in the country."

"Right, Henry, we've got to draw the line somewhere. Is that it?"

"South Korea wants $750 million to beef up their defenses."

"Well, give it to them, for heaven's sakes. If we don't help our friends, who will?"

Slap-dash play works on occasion. South wins the first heart and goes after clubs. The slap-dash player bangs down the ace and king. This drops West's queen and South is sure of 10 tricks. He probably makes an eleventh by leading a diamond toward dummy's queen and may even wind up with twelve if the defense isn't top notch. The expert declarer doesn't do nearly as well. He has bid three notrump and wants to win the game and rubber. He does win the first heart and does lay down his ace of clubs, but his next club play is a low one toward the jack. West takes his queen and goes about the business of setting up his hearts but this doesn't bother expert South at all. South wanted to guard against a 4-1 club break and the low club to the jack was a perfect safety play.

Give West four clubs he could take his queen then or later, but that would be his only club trick. If East held them he would take his quarry. Later on, South would lead a club from dummy and pick up the rest of the suit.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Louisiana wants to know why it is that the experts always make the winning plays in our column.

Today's article shows quite the opposite. The expert makes three or maybe four notrump. The ordinary player makes four five or even six. In general, we try to show the best play and the best play wins more often than poorer ones, but it does not win all the time.

DEATH NOTICES

Andrew A. Bordoli

Andrew A. Bordoli, 72, 1814 West Fifth, died at the Missouri Pacific Hospital in St. Louis Wednesday afternoon.

He was born in Terry, S. D., Feb. 12, 1903, son of the late James and Madeline Formito Bordoli. He married Dena Beavers, Nov. 28, 1934, and she preceded him in death March 10, 1959. On Sept. 4, 1962, he married Lucille Hill Shy, who survives, of the home.

He worked in the signal department at the Missouri Pacific Shops until his retirement. He had lived in Sedalia since 1949, moving here from Atchinson, Kan.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Also surviving are two step-sons, James Shy, Independence; Larry Shy, Medina, Ohio; one step-daughter, Mrs. Sibi Montague, Pittsburgh, Pa.; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Conrad and Mrs. Martin Schmidt, both of Moberly; Mrs. Mary Somers, St. Louis; and nine step-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday at the Heckart-Gillespie Colonial Chapel with the Rev. George R. Kern, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating.

Palbearers will be Clark Baker, Ira Barnes, C. F. Gault, Frank Hanigan, Albert Lindsey and Robert Werner.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

Raymond McCormick

MARSHALL — Raymond McCormick, 64, died at 1 a.m. Thursday at his home here.

He was born Nov. 19, 1910, in Malta Bend, son of Albert and Laura McCormick.

Survivors include his wife, Ann Patterson McCormick, of the home; three sisters, Mrs. Irene Maloney, Pleasant Hill; Mrs. Anna Booth, 612 West Fourth, Sedalia; Mrs. Mary Logan, 612 West Fourth, Sedalia; three brothers, Roy McCormick, Salina, Kan.; Harry McCormick, Malta Bend; Alva McCormick, Kansas City; one niece, and one nephew.

Funeral services are incomplete.

The body is at the Campbell-Lewis Funeral Home here.

Ila Mae Scott

TANEYVILLE, Mo. — Ila Mae Scott, 62, died Wednesday at the University of Missouri Medical Center, Columbia.

She was born Oct. 20, 1912, in Stover, daughter of Claude R. and Gordia Mae Wilson Rapp. She was married to Fred Scott on Dec. 28, 1955, and he survives of the home.

They operated a restaurant at the intersection of Highways 54 and 129 in Osage Beach for 15 years, before moving here five years ago.

Other survivors include one brother, Earl Rapp, Stover; and one niece, Mrs. James Fredrick, Parkville.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Stover Methodist Church with the Rev. P. H. Wilbanks officiating.

Burial will be in the Stover Cemetery.

Friends may call after 2 p.m. Friday at the Scrivner Funeral Chapel, Stover.

Lee Toliver

Funeral services for Lee Toliver, 70, 1515 East Seventh, who died at Bothwell Hospital Wednesday morning, will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 10:30 a.m. Friday. The Rev. J. D. Sherman, pastor of the Calvary Temple, will officiate.

Palbearers will be Theodore Jones, Leroy Salmons, Harvey Pace, Jose Buso, Lloyd Pace and Ervin Thompson.

Burial will be in the Crown Hill Cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home.

Mrs. Ruby Helmers

SWEET SPRINGS — Mrs. Ruby Helmers, 57, of here, died Wednesday at the University of Missouri Medical Center, Columbia.

She was born April 2, 1918, at Jefferson City, daughter of Karl and Edith Kale Harms. She was married to J. Henry Helmers March 10, 1946, at Hepler, Kan. He survives of the home.

Mrs. Helmers was a member of the Immanuel Lutheran Church, here, where she taught Saturday classes and vacation Bible school. She lived in Sweet Springs for 14 years.

Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, John Helmers, of the home; Jerry A. Moore, San Jose, Calif.; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the church with the Rev. Wayne Schumpe officiating.

Burial will be in the Fairview Cemetery. Palbearers will be Elmer L. Eckhoff, Harlan Schroeder, Orman Meador, Raymond Langewisch, Oscar Lemke, Warner Hermerding, Jerry Nichols and Clifford Schroeder.

The family will receive friends from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Friday at the James-Berg Funeral Home here.

Those eligible for tax refunds still sought

The Missouri Department of Revenue is trying to locate several area citizens who still have refunds from their Missouri income tax due them because of overpayment.

James R. Spradling, department director, reported that more than 8,000 taxpayers entitled to refunds cannot be found and all efforts by the department to locate these taxpayers and remit their overpayments have been unsuccessful. The average refund is about $30, he said.

Taxpayers who are located and make claims for refunds must submit the claim in writing, enclosing name, current address and social security number. Claims should be addressed to Tax Refund, P. O. Box 500, Jefferson City, Mo., 65101.

The following are Sedalia and area taxpayers who are entitled to refunds, with their last-known addresses listed as follows.

Grant Co. store in Sedalia to close before end of year

The W. T. Grant Co. store in the State Fair Shopping Center here will close before Christmas, according to merchandise manager Joe Vich.

Although the Sedalia store has not received official notification of a specific closing date, Vich indicated he recently was notified the store would close before the end of the year.

The Sedalia store is among three outlets to close in the state. The others are at Main Street and Antioch Shopping Center in Kansas City.

The company announced Thursday afternoon it will continue to operate only 11 stores west of the Mississippi River — two in Missouri and nine in Louisiana.

Vich said Thursday night the Sedalia store employs about 65 full and part-time persons. He said the store has not been notified of possible employee relocation.

In New York the company said the closings were the first part of a new store location strategy made necessary when it voluntarily declared bankruptcy a week ago. A spokesman for the company told the Associated Press that 126 stores have already closed.

Grant will close 107 stores by Nov. 30 and the other 94 by the end of December, probably after the Christmas shopping rush. The spokesman said he did not know how many employees would be laid off.

The company had estimated that it would initially close 225 to 250 stores, where about 13,000 people worked. Grant's 1,074 stores before the announcement Thursday employed 62,000 workers.

Grant was the largest retailing company to declare bankruptcy in U.S. history. It lost $177.3 million in 1974 and another $111.5 million in the first half of this year. When it filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the Federal bankruptcy laws, Grant said it owed $1.03 billion but had assets worth only $1.016 billion.

The company was formed in Massachusetts in 1906 and its stores have always been concentrated in the Northeast.

The downfall began at the peak of Grant's massive expansion from Main Street into the suburbs with Grant City stores, which tried to compete with other giant retail stores such as K-Mart and Woolco.

In the 1960s, Grant had only about 480 stores, mostly in downtown areas. But the number of stores doubled by 1960 and, by 1965, 83 per cent of the company's profits came from the new stores.

The expansion continued in the 1970s, with 439 new stores being opened, even as sales began to decline. To build the new stores, Grant had to borrow money—$640 million from 27 banks alone.

Russian awarded Nobel peace prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) Soviet dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov was awarded the 1975 Nobel peace prize Thursday, making him the second avowed Kremlin critic in the Soviet Union to become a Nobel laureate in five years.

In 1970 the Nobel literature prize went to Alexander Solzhenitsyn, who has since then been exiled from his country.

An earlier Nobel literature prize also displeasing to Soviet authorities was awarded to Boris Pasternak in 1958. He was pressured into rejecting the prize and died still in the Soviet Union two years later.

Sakharov, the first Russian ever to receive the peace prize since it was first awarded in 1901, was cited for "personal and fearless effort in the cause of peace" and a "fight against violence and brutality."

The award, worth $140,000, was announced by the Norwegian parliament's Nobel Committee, which was understood to have discussed 50 candidates.

One of those said to have been considered for the prize was the Rev. Luis Maria Xirinachs, a Spanish Roman Catholic priest who was released only this week from a Madrid prison after serving a two-year term for distributing illegal propaganda in his nonviolent campaign for the restoration of civil rights.

Others reported to have been nominated for the prize were President Urho Kekkonen of Finland; Yugoslav Mother Theresa, leader of the Mission of Charity in Calcutta, India; The International Press Institute, and the international Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts organizations.

Hearing date is set for Sedalian

A preliminary hearing for Albert B. President, 32, 108 East Johnson, charged Wednesday afternoon in Magistrate Court with carrying a concealed weapon, a felony, was set for Oct. 23 during his arraignment Thursday morning before Magistrate Judge Hazel Palmer.

President was arrested by Sedalia police at 1:56 a.m. Wednesday at Pettis and Missouri when he allegedly had a .38 caliber derringer in his possession.

Police received a call of gunshots being heard at Pettis and Missouri about 1:50 a.m. Details of the incident were not made available by police.

President was freed from the county jail Thursday morning after posting $3,500 bond.

Democrats forming lines next week

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Democratic State Committee Chairman James Spain expects quite a squabble will develop early next week when party leaders meet in Washington to approve new by-laws.

"You're going to find out which direction the Democratic National Committee is going," Spain said, referring to some of the proposed by-law changes.

House extensively damaged by vandals

The Pettis County sheriff's department is investigating the extensive vandalism done Wednesday to the Kenneth Paxton home in the Maplewood subdivision, east of Sedalia.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax reported that the home was unlocked between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Wednesday and that red paint had been sprayed throughout the house.

According to reports, one side of a double kitchen sink was painted red, obscenities were painted on the living room rug, the refrigerator was damaged and holes were knocked in a wall, apparently with a broom handle.

No damage estimate was made available.

Jury trial set for murder case

The jury trial of one of two Warrensburg men charged with the April 1 murder of Jesse "Rembrandt" Howarter was set Thursday for Dec. 16 and 17 in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Carl Edward Hardin, 20, Warrensburg, was granted a change of venue from Johnson County because of extensive publicity about the slaying. He is in Pettis County jail in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Howarter was a 62-year-old itinerant who set up a sign painting shop in the northwest part of Warrensburg.

Investigators reported he apparently was slain after interrupting a burglary at a coin laundry adjacent to his place.

Leon Taylor, 17, also is charged with Howarter's murder and is in Johnson County jail, in lieu of $50,000 bond, while awaiting trial.

Special transportation needs come under review

A special task force committee to further investigate the possibilities of obtaining public transportation for the elderly and handicapped in Sedalia was formed Thursday morning at a meeting in the Municipal Building.

Committee members are: John Thomas, assistant superintendent in charge of transportation for the local school system; Max Shirley, representing the Mid-Missouri Association of the Blind and Physically Handicapped; Roger Garlich, director of the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center; Marvin Welch, president of the American Association of Retired Persons; Harry Thomason, representing the local senior citizens' nutrition center and Area Agency on Aging, Warrensburg; and Chuck Haley, director of the area Older Adults Transportation System (OATS) office in Sedalia. Haley was named chairman of the group.

Leading the discussion was Peter Schauer, Columbia, state OATS director. Thomas said the school district's primary goal would be to obtain "lifts" and other mechanical apparatus to help handicapped students in wheelchairs and children who use other devices, get on and off school buses. There are presently about 10 such youngsters transported by the district.

Schauer informed Thomas that funds for such equipment, to be placed on an existing school bus, could possibly be obtained through federal Urban Mass Transit Act funds administered in Missouri by the state Department of Transportation. These funds are designed to help pay for elderly and handicapped transportation services for non-profit institutions.

Another possibility, Schauer said, would be for the OATS office to supervise the operation of a specially-equipped bus for the handicapped, which could then be used by the school district, Children's Therapy Center, sheltered workshops and other

According to Saline County Sheriff Henry Hoff, Kevin Sumpter, brother of Cindy Lue Sumpter, 16, was taken by ambulance to Fitzgibbon Memorial Hospital, Marshall, for treatment of the gunshot wound. He was struck in the right leg between the ankle and knee, Hoff said.

According to Hoff, the gun was fired through the front door of the Gerald L. Sumpter home here. The bullet passed through one side of the living room couch, over the head of the Sumpter boy and lodged in a wall. The boy apparently was lying on his side facing the rear of the couch, Hoff said.

Hoff said fragments of the bullet were taken to the Jefferson City crime lab and reports are expected by Saturday. He indicated an investigative team will begin work on the case Friday.
